PICHED BATTLE WON BY PEASANTS

Many Killed and Wounded by Loyal Soldiers, but Revolutionists March on Roumanian Capital—Government Prepares for Siege.

BUCHAREST Roumania, March 27.—With three columns of peasants advancing on Bucharest, fully armed and confident of their ultimate victory, despite the outcome of the desperate battle fought yesterday, in which sixty countrymen went down to death before the guns of the government troops, and 300 were wounded, Bucharest is to-day a city afraid.

Reckless of their heavy losses the peasant revolutionists continued their advance upon the capital. The capital is prepared for a siege. Fully 1,000 soldiers stand guard constantly over the palace. Every entrance to the city is likewise guarded. Military patrols can be seen in every street.

King Charles, Queen Carmen Sylva and the court fear for their lives.

Though the garrisons in the capital's eighteen forts have been strengthened, the government's confidence in the army is shaken, since thousands of the reservists called out to suppress the peasant revolt have instead made common cause with the rioters.

Burn and Sack Cities.

Two thousand peasants, led by three students, are burning and sacking the city of Petroeni. Prince Bibesy's palace is among the buildings looted and burned.

In the districts of Teleorman and Vlashca twenty-three proprietors have been killed and forty-two villages have been burned down.

The revolt against heavy taxes and the land trust has reached the proportions of civil war.

The movement has extended throughout the entire province of Wallachia.

In the district of Zimmince a number of farms, most of them belonging to Roumanians, have been plundered, and it is reported that the towns of Zimmince and Zoret have been devastated.

The peasants are pillaging the shops and the merchants and their clerks are arming themselves with guns and revolvers for the protection of their lives and property.

Christian landowners as well as Jews are being slain and their property pillaged and destroyed in every section.

The measures proposed by the Government to meet the demands of the revolted peasantry and the civil war were announced in to-day's issue of the Official Gazette, in a proclamation by King Charles.

King Appeals to Appeal.

The King appeals for the patriotic cooperation of the people to re-establish tranquility, and announces that the sovereign has agreed to the immediate suppression of some heavy taxes, while upon after the farm lands which are cultivated by the State or leased direct to the peasants. Not on of the larger syndicates hitherto engaged in farming vast tracts of land will be allowed to hold more than 8,000 acres.

The document also gives notice of the introduction of laws to ameliorate the condition of the peasantry, facilitating the raising of money to pay rents, reforming the taxation of small holdings and revising the terms of the agricultural agreements, which at present practically enslave the peasantry.

"Those reforms," the proclamation concludes, "being the desire of the sovereign and the government, all Roumanians are urged to give all possible assistance to the government, which, while scrupulously applying the laws and avoiding injustice, will at the same time vigorously suppress all disorders and severely punish all who seek to profit by robbery."

Commission Confers With Judge in Court Session

THAW TO AID LUNACY BOARD

How Thaw Comforted Wife

"Never mind, dearie, it's all right. There is no need to worry. "I am not insane. You know that and Mr. O'Reilly and Mr. Peabody and everybody else who is sane knows that I am not insane.

"I do not fear a lunacy commission, if it is composed of fair-minded men. That is all I ask.

"Now, you cheer up and look at it in the same light I do. It may be for the best."—Harry Thaw to Evelyn when she went to announce to him the appointment of lunacy commission.

EVELYN'S LOVE AND HOPE REVEALED TO MISS MORRIS

To Miss Clara Morris, the distinguished former actress, who visited her in behalf of the AMERICAN, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw has given the first extended interview sh has accorded a newspaper.

Almost all her talk was of Harry's kindness and of their love for each other.

"While there is breath in Harry Thaw's body no one will take him from me!" she declared. "No one!"

IT is generally the unexpected that happens, and the incredible has come true. And all because a gentleman, noted for his courtesy, stood as a mutual friend between two women unacquainted with each other. One, a woman of yesterday; the other, not only a woman of to-day, but the woman of the hour.

When the former asked if she might send a message of sympathy to the latter, the friend seemed to make a mental calculation and then replied: "Why not deliver the message yourself?"

Why, indeed? And as it was Mr. Delmas who asked the question, he only could answer it, which he did, with the result that presently Mr. McPike was graciously acting as master of ceremonies, in presenting the old and the new to each other. I turned my face toward him, figuratively awaiting the muscle, but it came not. A warning glance, perhaps, but no word of caution, no strict limit was put upon our chat; and such trust in her discretion puts a woman on her honor. My lips, therefore, were absolutely sealed to the great taboo, "the case," and here I was alone with its very centre and cause, Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw.

Silently Took Stock, Each of the Other.

We faced and silently took stock, each of the other, and straightway I received a shock. "Where were the violet eyes of the scribes?" I asked myself. "Am I color blind, that I can see no trace of blue in these—the lustrous, swimming, dark eyes, beloved by poets?" Desperately—apropos of nothing—I boldly questioned: "Mrs. Thaw, what is truly the color of your eyes, please?"

A little, vexed surprise was in her tone, as she said: "Why, brown—my eyes are brown."

"Yes—thanks," I meekly answered, "I had supposed they were, but I wanted to be sure."

Here had been a greeting of gentle warmth; in manner almost to shyness; but halted at that still aplomb that so amazed court, jury and spectators in that four-day terror of cross-examination. Her movements are so languid that she excuses them in a half articulate manner of "Not so very well—I am so tired." The with quick, remorseful courtesy, adds: "Oh, it's not this—not at all! I wake quite tired to the early morning, now." Such a pitifully sad acknowledgment. The round of her cheek, too, has changed to a delicate hollow, and she is so fragile of figure and presents so perfect a picture of the overworked school girl that it seems

PRISONER TO-DAY FACING MEN WHO ARE TO DECIDE ON HIS MENTAL CONDITION.

NEW YORK, March 27.—That Harry Thaw will know next Monday whether he is to be immured in Matteawan Asylum or must continue his fight for life before the jury is believed to-day.

Justice Fitzgerald at to-day's session of the court excused the jury until Monday. This was after a private conference with the members of the lunacy commission. It is now expected that the commission will be ready to report on the prisoner's condition at that time.

Thaw, Justice Fitzgerald, members of the commission and the jury entered the courtroom at 11:40 o'clock to-day. The members of the commission sat within the attorneys' rail. After Justice Fitzgerald excused the jury Attorney Harriddge and District Attorney Jerome conferred with the Justice.

Thaw Relatives in Court.

Evelyn, Mrs. William Thaw, the Countess of Yarmouth and Mrs. George L. Carnegie sat behind Thaw.

Thaw was taken out when the jury retired, but the women remained.

Evelyn's eyes and cheeks were swollen, showing distinct signs of much weeping.

The conference between the counsel and the Court was continued in low tones and lasted some time.

a rather coarse joke to call her Mrs. Anybody.

Thaw and His Wife Mated As Well as Married.

She had come with a charming gift of flowers. We placed them close by, and disposed ourselves, one on a couch where pillows were plentiful, the other in a rocker, and—talked. And let it be known at once that whatever did not begin with what "Harry said," surely ended with what "Harry did." For whether we were on heights or in depth, or lingering on the farlelund, "Harry" was never two good breaths away.

For here, to-day—the past ignored—Harry Thaw and his wife Evelyn are mated as well as married. That they waded through sin and shame and blood to secure their perfect union is but a mere detail to the young egotism of their passionate love; and one grows strong in the belief that in this great wide world there was just this one woman who could happily mate with Harry Thaw, who was himself so settled in that belief that he risked his honor and his life to make her his lawful wife. And if anyone is cruel enough to desire to pierce two living hearts with one poisoned lance, to their great suffering, they have but to hint at an annulment of this Thaw marriage.

The girl-woman's eyes filled slowly; her hands were cast outward helplessly as she gasped: "It's cruel! It's cruel! Such a lie as that! It's the one thing Harry cannot bear quietly."

"No One Shall Take Him From Me," She Declares.

And then suddenly there came just one touch of fierce, hot fury; her hands were clenched, her head flung up, as she declared, with slowly reddening face: "While there is breath in Harry Thaw's body, no one will take me from him! No one!"

"Amen!" I added, mentally.

"Mrs. Thaw," I remarked, "Harry has you to comfort him; also his mother and his sisters and brothers. But you, little woman, who comforts you?"

She widened her eyes to the utmost—a trick she shares with very small children and young girls in their first efforts at flirtation. "Me? Who comforts me? Why, Harry?"—I might have known, I thought. "Yes, he braces me up, and makes me look on the right side of things, and comforts me wonderfully."

I smiled, for they tell the story differently at the Tombs; and I preceded.

"After your visit to Mr. Thaw, what do you do with the rest of the day?"

"I write to Harry," she promptly answered; "sometimes several notes of an afternoon. Then"—importantly—"I have to get him books"—and here a proud dissertation on Harry's knowledge of serious and heavy reading; of his amazing memory for historic dates; his perfect French; his

ASK GARFIELD TO CHANGE VOTE

Brockton Labor Unions Telegraph Their Position on the Plan to Sidetrack Bills.

Special to the Boston American.

BROCKTON, March 27.—The Brockton Central Labor Union meets to-night to discuss the sidetracking of labor bills in the Legislature by means of the Taft "recess" committee. Resolutions will be passed that will leave nobody in doubt concerning organized labor's earnest and decided opposition to the scheme.

The duck-and-dodge order was denounced last night by the legislative council of the Central Labor Union and by the legislative council of the joint shoe council. A telegram was sent to Senator George H. Garfield asking him to change his vote when reconsideration is moved to-day and to oppose the order. Senator Garfield is in the grocery and provision trade here.

THINK ABDUCTORS HOLD MARVIN BOY NEAR LYNN

POLICE NOW SEARCH SUBURBS FOR STRANGE COUPLE AND FAIR-HAIRED LAD.

Special to the Boston American.

LYNN, March 27.—Believing that four-year-old Horace Marvin, the kidnapped Dover, Del., lad, has been brought to this city and is now imprisoned on the out skirts by his abductors, the Lynn police force is to-day scouring the suburbs to find the boy for whom the whole nation is hunting.

Thomas W. Gardiner, a prominent and wealthy manufacturer, is positive that he saw the little Marvin boy in possession of his captors on a trolley car, in the very heart of Lynn last night. It was his information which led the police to take up the search, which is centred particularly upon the sparsely settled road leading to Peabody. The Italian colony at Swampscott is also being thoroughly searched to-day.

Try to Quiet Little Fellow.

Mr. Gardiner left his home on Harwood street early last evening for the Oxford Club, boarding a Swampscott car on South Common street. He noticed in the crowd on the car a dark-complexioned man and woman who had with them a fair-faced and light-haired child of about three or four years.

The little fellow seemed ill at ease and fretful, and the couple seemed anxious to keep him quiet. Though the man and woman were poorly dressed, the boy was clad in wilfe and evidently used to kind parents and a luxurious home.

The woman paid no attention to the lad, but the man held him in his lap and tried to keep him from looking around the car or out of the window. At Central square the couple left the car, asking a question of the conductor. He told them, "Take a Lynnwood car."

Sends Word to Police.

Mr. Gardiner, having in mind the Marvin kidnapping and being familiar with the newspaper pictures of the Marvin boy, was greatly agitated and immediately telephoned the police. Captain William Rowe, in charge of the station, at once detailed Patrolman John Clark, on duty in the Wyoma district, to keep a sharp lookout for the couple and the boy.

From early in the evening the police man watched all cars coming from the centre of the city, and kept a watch on houses and lumber places in the vicinity, but reported to headquarters that his search had been futile.

Chief Burckes told a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day that in case the Marvin kidnappers were in Lynn last night they had evidently taken the stolen boy to some unoccupied house in a lonely section on the road leading to Peabody, this being his reason for hunting in that direction for the kidnappers.

Acting on information furnished by the AMERICAN reporter, the Swampscott Chief of Police immediately detailed several officers to hunt through the extensive Italian colony in that town.

DETECTIVES FOLLOW CLOSE ON TRAIL OF KIDNAPPER SUSPECTS

Boston American Leased Wire.

DOVER, Del., March 27.—Detectives, posses and State officers are hot on the trail of two men to-day who were seen near Kitts Hammock late yesterday by Miss Lucy Millies, a school teacher, and who are believed to be the kidnappers of little Horace Marvin.

It is thought that the men were approaching the Marvin farm to deal with the boy's father, Mr. Marvin has promised by letters to pay $1,000 to men pretending to have the boy and ask no questions. The men were talking of the kidnapping when Miss Millies approached. One drew a pistol and made her promise not to tell what she had seen and heard. It is believed that the men will be arrested to-day.

Declares That While Life Is Left in His Body No One Shall Take Husband from Her.

true appreciation of art. Yes, she "had to find magazines and books he wanted and—er—do a little work for him."

Sews and Mends For Harry, She Says.

I have very talkative eyebrows. They rose up and questioned her. She answered them. "I have to sew a little for him—and mend, you know."

"In Heaven's name, new what?" I asked. Her whole face broke into laughter, as she explained, triumphantly: "Why, buttons, of course. Buttons come off down there as well as anywhere else. I sew them on—and darn his socks for him, too."

My laughter had silenced itself, and though my eyes were fixed upon the carpet, for my life I could not follow its sprawling pattern, for a certain mist.

Suddenly I glanced up at her, and asked: "How strong a hold has the theatre got upon you now?"

"Almost none," she answered, calmly and readily.

"I shall always enjoy a good play—that's all."

"But," I urged, "you were ambitious once."

"Yes, but that was before I grew to care for Harry."

She smiled. I had felt that "Harry" was about due. "You see," she went on with an air of wisdom, "I was unfortunate in entering the profession by way of musical comedy. I was not fit for it. Harry told me so at once. He said I had not the figure nor the face; was not of the show girl type. He said I should have been in a good company, where I could have learned to play the—er—the young girl parts, you know."

"The ingenues," I suggested.

Was So Happy with Harry's Mother in Pittsburg.

"Yes," she answered. "Harry thought I had ability for that work." And to myself I said: "There's nothing wrong with Mr. Harry Thaw's dramatic judgment."

What was somehow meditioned, and I asked if Mr. Thaw played.

"Harry? Oh, he is an expert. He loves the game above any other. Why, I was leaving the garden that dreadful night to drop Harry at the white cote for an hour's play. Then I was going home to bed, as I was not at all well, and wanted no supper."

She told me further, and then she stopped. "Perhaps you should not," I whispered.

She knit her fine brows and said slowly: "It's not before the court—is not in the case—but, perhaps"—and so the question dropped.

"You are hopeful and confident?" I asked.

"Oh, yes, yes" she answered, hurriedly. "The lawyers seem very confident."

"And Mrs. William Thaw?" exclaimed Mrs. Harry. "A philosopher!" exclaimed Mrs. Harry. And with warm admiration she told of the mother's steady faith, her courage and her intense satisfaction in finding the opportunity to proudly deny in her affidavit the awful public tales of diseased mind in the Thaw and Copley forbears. "She is so good at home," she continued, "she takes such trouble to insure the comfort of every one beneath her roof. We were so happy there, after our return from California. Harry and I—"

Were to Have Sailed With Mother for Europe.

"He had his music and his books and golf, and he wanted me to resume my neglected piano practice. I had lessons from the very best teacher and I practiced very hard and studied French. And there were grass and flowers and trees, and a little stream where we got things for my aquarium."

"And," I interrupted, a trifle curtly, perhaps, "if you were so happy there, what brought you two to New York directly Mrs. William Thaw had gone away from home?"

"Why, we were to have sailed with her, but could not get proper accommodations on that steamer. So we waited over here in a hotel for the sailing of our steamer, and—then this happened."

And "this" means Harry Thaw's long incarceration, her own lonely waiting for him; his possible danger—but I don't believe the dead man's face exists clearly in the memory or the imagination of Mrs. Harry Thaw.

Now, I can't talk to woman or man one hour without saying "dog"; and I wounded my caller deeply by thoughtlessly repeating an overheard statement that she would have no pets, and hated dogs.

"Oh! oh!" she exclaimed; "that's too wicked!" She stamped her foot. "When I love dogs almost senselessly. And I own the dearest, most perfect little Pom that ever was. And Harry"—I knew it, I just felt "Harry" would be needed here—"Harry is devoted to him, and all dogs love Harry!"

"Harry Is the Best, the Kindest Man," She Said.

And as she dropped into her chair again she said that when little Snap was sick Harry had a doctor for him, and would get up in the night to give the medicine himself. "Ah, he is the best, the kindest man!"

"Where's little Hop?" I asked.

The bright face fell. "He's in the care of the housekeeper in Pittsburg, but I love him, if I can't have him with me just now."

I had noted that, through all the wanderings and twistings of our talk, she one single word of slang had been used by me, when I quoted Roger O'Mara's word "spiled," and recalled this girl woman's Paris "Dead Rat" letter, that was instinct with the very living spirit of middleclass Broadway. One can only bow to the wonderful adaptability of her quick intelligence.

We talked of everything on earth, some things in Heaven and a few things under the earth. In ten minutes she gave me more practical information about running an aquarium than I could have found from books in as many days—including a tragic recital of the finding of a hideous small monster, with sickly green eyes, floating black hair, that was a cannibal from "way back" and seemed and must have his awful countenance every living thing in the collector's tin. Inevitably he ate the rest of newly hatched lizards. And this monster, having lived long enough to be a breeding guide, split himself jauntily down the back and came forth a radiant darting of sun, and flowers, and ponds—a splendid dragon fly.

Told How She First Knew That She Loved Harry.

Also she gave me a most charming description of her discovery in herself of her first love symptoms. Harry had been so good—oh, so good—to her, and she had got so she liked him pretty well, when lo! one day, just by chance, she found that she knew the footstep of Harry Thaw; could distinguish it from among many others. She was surprised and rather vexed, and while she was yet thinking of the matter a number of people came down the hall and she listened, intent for Harry's step, and because it did not come her heart gave a downward plunge that frightened her, and she was angry.

Oh, yes; she was quite angry—only suddenly there was Harry's step coming down the hall straight to her door. And a lot of little prickles came up and down her spine, and her face grew all hot, and she felt secretly assured that that was a true symptom of love!

I congratulated her on the diagnosis she had made and thought how poorly the cultured, overtrained girl, compared to the little laughter from the roadside of her hard way, suggested the central idea of a great tragedy.

After the approaching close of our visit had ventured: "Is there any suggestion you would like to make to me?"

The weary look was back, and the old, helpless gesture of the hands.

"Only Tell People How Good Harry Is."

"Not for me," she said, "but if you would only tell people how good Harry is; how impossible are the dreadful things said of him! He is even laughed at for his excessive care of me. If I sneeze, he runs for the quinine; if I sit in a draught he runs upstairs for a cloak, and yet they have sworn that he"——I shook my head; she stopped. Oh, but he is so patient and brave!"

Others entered, she rose and languidly began to fasten her blue fur cloak. Looking at her I thought in most humans two characters are living. In this slight, wiry creature is a clear-minded, far-seeing woman and also a pathetic, unstable girl—both live solely for the rescue of Harry Thaw. Mr. Jerome met the clever woman; I have met the simple girl.

A hand clasp—a whispered wish, which I heartily echo, and Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was gone. I buried my face in her cliff of roses and whispered:

"There, don't cry, little girl;
And the rainbow gleams of poor youthful dreams
Are things of the long ago."

WOMEN WAR ON PETERS; SAY HE IS A DOG HATER

Mrs. Seagrave Heads Ladies' Kennel Club Fight to Oust Him from State Service.

Hundreds of women dog fanciers all over the Commonwealth, headed by the members of the Ladies' Kennel Club, which includes rich and influential society leaders of Greater Boston, are fighting the reappointment by Governor Guild of Dr. Austin J. Peters, chief of the cattle bureau of the Board of Agriculture.

Dr. Peters angered women dog owners all over the State by his declaration that all unmuzzled dogs should be killed, and that dog taxes should be raised to $5 and $10. He ordered all dogs in the State muzzled during the recent rabies scare.

At a dog law hearing before the Committee on Agriculture at the State House on March 5, Dr. Peters was hissed by the women present.

Leads in Fight on Peters.

Mrs. E. H. Seagrave, president of the Ladies' Kennel Club, is leading the fight against Dr. Peters.

"Governor Guild must heed this petition from the women of the Commonwealth," she declared to-day. "He is not consider Dr. Peters a fair man to handle the problem in this State—for many reasons. In the first place, he is a dog fancier, and has said in public that he wished all the dogs in this State could be killed.

"Again, he has in two instances given out statements that two dogs had rabies, when by reputable veterinaries' opinions they were in normal health. One of these dogs was run over by an automobile.

"The Ladies' Kennel Club will waive a public hearing, at which they may have a chance to present their reasons for opposing his reappointment."

Petition Against Peters.

Signatures to the petition to the Governor are coming in rapidly, and the Kennel Club members are confident that they will defeat Dr. Peters.

The petition reads as follows:

To His Excellency, Curtis Guild, Jr., Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts:

Respectfully represent your petitioners that they are citizens of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, that they are interested in the affairs of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, that they are informed that the term of Dr. Austin Peters as Chief of the Cattle Bureau of the State Board of Agriculture of said Commonwealth expires on or about the first day of May, A. D., 1907, and that they believe that said Dr. Austin Peters should not be again appointed to that office:

Wherefore your petitioners pray that his Excellency Governor considers advisable the reappointment of said Dr. Austin Peters as Chief of the Cattle Bureau of this Commonwealth they may be given an opportunity to present their reasons for believing such appointment should not be made.

The officers of the Ladies' Kennel club of Massachusetts are: President, Mrs. E. H. Seagrave of Wakefield; vice-president, Mrs. Charles Dennee of No. 95 Bellevue avenue, Brookline; secretary, Miss Ethel Bond of Channing Cox.

Speaking of the agitation against Dr. Peters, Mrs. Dennee said to-day:

"We want everyone in the State who is interested in the welfare of our petition to sign it. We are circulating copies of the petition in every part of the State, so that everyone may have a chance to sign who wishes."

Dr. Peters merely says:

"I don't want to talk myself to death, like some people. It will be time enough to talk when something happens."

WOMAN SAYS JEALOUSY LED TO MURDER

Janitor, Charged with Killing William Saunders, Pleads Self-Defence.

Declaring that he shot and killed William H., Saunders of No. 33 Wellington street in self-defence, George F. Seaver, janitor of the apartments in which the dead man lived, was arraigned for murder in the Municipal Court to-day.

Seaver asserts that Saunders had threatened his life. Jealousy between the two men began, according to Mrs. Delia Tyler, a widow, who occupies the first floor apartment, about a year and a half ago, when Mrs. Seaver was found by Saunders sitting in her kitchen.

"I remember Mr. Saunders glared at Mr. Seaver when he came in that time and saw him sitting there," said Mrs. Tyler to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "Mr. Saunders didn't say anything that I could hear, but he mumbled a lot. After that they frequently quarreled.

"This terrible thing has nearly made me ill. All night long I have been walking the room unable to sleep.

"After they met in my kitchen they had frequent words with one another.

"Last night Mr. Seaver was in the hallway turning out the lights. I heard his step on the stairs, and then I heard Mr. Saunders's voice. I couldn't hear what he was saying to Mr. Seaver. There was a noise of some one running up stairs and then the shot. That is all that I know about it.

"I have known Mr. Saunders fod about twelve years. We were friends; that is as far as one can be friends with him."

Mrs. Tyler appeared in court to-day as a witness.

Seaver is married and lives at No. 158 Warren avenue. He has been janitor of the Wellington street house for a number of years.

How Man Was Shot.

The shooting took place about 11:36 o'clock. According to Seaver, he was just about to leave the house when he met Saunders. Saunders called him names, he said, and announced that he would fix him.

Seaver turned and ran up stairs. Saunders followed him. On the second landing Seaver turned and says that he saw something bright in Saunders's hand. Believing it to be either a revolver or a knife, he took out his own revolver and fired at random.

"I had no intention of killing him," Seaver said. "I was only defending myself."

Saunders was shot through the heart. He dropped on the landing and his body was found there.

Stumbled Over Body.

Lawrence Bowling, a court stenographer, stumbled over the body of Saunders. Bowling ran into the street for help. He found Drs. C. W. Houghton and George F. Keenan of the City Hospital and Patrolman Hill of the Dedham street station. The physicians saw they could do nothing for Saunders and sent for Medical Examiner McDonald.

Seaver was found by Patrolman Hill hiding in a corner and in a state of collapse. He was taken to the station and then was examined by Captain Dugan of headquarters.

Unless some other means are found the body of Saunders will have to be buried at the expense of the city. His only relatives are a widowed sister, Mrs. Margaret Cowen, who lives with her two little girls, Robert and Sidney, at No. 27 Yarmouth street.

Some time ago when times were prosperous, Saunders brought his sister and her children to Boston and provided for them. When he lost his money, Mrs. Cowen was compelled to secure work. Saunders continued to do what he could for them.

Mrs. Cowen went to her work to-day, not knowing that her brother had been killed.

POPE HAPPY IN NEW LIBERTY, LABORS HARD

Special Cable from the Hearst News Service.

Copyright, 1907, by W. R. Hearst.

ROME, March 27.—The Pope has never led such an active life as at present. Desiring the life of the late Dr. Lapponi His Holiness was always very careful to follow the doctor's advice. Accordingly he worked little, walked a great deal, dieted carefully and slumbered as far as possible from disturbing audiences.

Now things are different. His Holiness's medical advisers, Drs. Petacci and Marchiafave, are far less exacting than was Dr. Lapponi, and, since they offer him little advice, he is able to follow his own inclinations.

Just now politics occupies a great deal of his time. Throughout the dispute with the French government he has worked without direct assistance, Cardinal Merry del Val being merely his adviser.

Every day the Pope receives twenty to thirty persons in private audience, and hundreds, sometimes even thousands, collectively. During the later years of Pope Leo XIII. the Vatican annually distributed an average of 10,000 permits to visit His Holiness, while the private audiences never exceeded 600 a year, but in 1905 58,000 such permits were issued. Last year the total reached 110,000, while there were 7,250 private audiences.

Music occupies the most important place in the present Pope's amusements. He is himself an accomplished musician, the possessor of a rich baritone voice and an able executant on the piano and organ.

A favorite amusement of the Pope is a game of cards with his secretary, Mgr. Bisleti. He never at stakes on such occasions. The Pope is also a keen observer of nature. The Pope is extremely scrupulous in his performance of prescribing three or four hours daily in prayer.

50 ARMED MEN HUNT ROBBERS IN PISTOL DUEL

Special to the Boston American.

SOMERS, Ct., March 27.—An armed posse of fifty citizens led by Constable Richard Deisney is searching the woods and hills around this town to-day trying to find traces of three crackamen, who, early this morning, broke into the Somers postoffice and general store of Fuller & Burgess on Main street, blew up the postoffice safe and got away with $300 in money and stamps and $4,500 in notes, some of them negotiable.

Constable Deisney, aroused from sleep by the explosion at the postoffice, ran out doors dressed only in a night shirt and armed with a repeating rifle. Catching a glimpse of the safe-blowers fleeing from the village, Deisney opened fire, sending the bullets after the men. Several bullets struck but not born by one of the fugitives the last was found later. Nitroglycerine was used in blowing open the safe. The entire town was shaken as if by an earthquake and the postoffice was wrecked.

STATES AT WAR ASK MEXICO TO ENFORCE PEACE

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, March 27.—Following the appeal of Salvador to Mexico to intervene to end the war in Central America it is expected that Honduras will make a similar plea, either to the United States or to Mexico.

President Bonilla, after the numerous defeats of his land forces, has held out with the sole hope that Salvador, Guatemala and Costa Rica would come to his assistance. Salvador's withdrawal from the fight has put a different complexion on things.

If the war is ended through intervention, a federation of the Central American states, with President Zelaya of Nicaragua at its head, may result. It is believed the great republics of the United States and Mexico may insist upon the formation of a federation as a means of keeping peace in the future.

NEEDHAM KILLS PROPOSED GRAB OF LIGHT TRUST

By an almost unanimous vote one of the hottest town meetings ever held in Needham turned down the proposition to sell the town's electric light distributing plant to the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston, last night, and authorized the moderator to appoint a committee of five citizens to report upon the advisability of the town building a generating plant and doing both street and commercial lighting.

At present the town owns the distributing plant, and the street lighting is done under contract with the Edison Company, the latter also doing the commercial lighting. The street lighting contract does not expire until October, 1908, but the company, following up its policy of obtaining a monopoly of the lighting business in Eastern Massachusetts, has for some time been endeavoring to secure absolute control of the system in this town.

Although favored by Edgar H. Bowers, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, the proposition to sell the town's plant met overwhelming defeat, a motion of Chairman Bowers for an investigation suffering like treatment, it being understood that no action was prepared by the Edison Company.

The meeting adopted a report of an investigation offered by N. W. Mitchell, which gave a committee of five, to be named later by the moderator, full scope to inquire into the lighting situation and report to the town next January. The committee was authorized to expend $250 for the employment of experts and other necessary expenses.

PROBE DEATH MYSTERY IN SOUTH END

The police are investigating the mysterious death of Morris Weiner, thirty-eight years of age, married, living at No. 95 Pleasant street, South End, who died at his home early to-day. Dr. Williams at once notified Medical Examiner McDonald, who will perform an autopsy to determine the cause of death.

Israel Imelford, seventeen, of No. 68 Middlesex street, to-day told the police that last night he saw Weiner lying unconscious on the pavement at Hingham street and Shawmut avenue, South End. Weiner was surrounded by a group of boys and they were apparently trying to help him to his feet.

Imelford went to the assistance of the boys and the man, regaining consciousness for a time, they were enabled to find where he lived and take him to his home, where he died early to-day. Burdick saw the scuffle and did not know by whom the man had been assaulted.

No signs of Weiner's being intoxicated were found and the police are trying to find the boys who were with Weiner. Further investigation will depend upon what the autopsy reveals.

HOLD FORGER; WANTED IN N. H.

HARTFORD, March 27.—Taking into custody yesterday, Howard Miller, on a charge of passing forged checks, the Hartford police secured a man who is wanted in Boston, Concord, N. H., and other places for swindling on a large scale.

Miller asked a local hotel to cash a check drawn on a New York firm and in his valise were other similar checks made payable to him, and two checkbooks.

The prisoner answers the description of the Howard L. Miller wanted by the Boston police for alleged passing of a check on the Broadway Savings and Trust Company at St. Louis for $45.

Miller is wanted by the Boston police on the charge of passing worthless checks. Captain Dugan of police headquarters said there were several complaints, but that the checks involved were for small amounts.

FEAR DAUGHTER IS HELD CAPTIVE

TAUNTON, March 27.—Charging that the 15-year-old daughter, Katherine, has been dragged with some powder of mysterious power which has destroyed the girl's normal reason, and that she is being held a prisoner after being abducted from her home, Mrs. Mary Black of East Weymouth street has stirred the police to action in the case.

A vigorous search for the girl and her abductor is being made to-day.

Miss Mack disappeared very mysteriously from her home Sunday afternoon, and no trace of her has since been found.

From what Mrs. Mack told the police suspicion points in a certain man as one who knows something about the disappearance of the girl.

That her daughter was taken against her will, Mrs. Mack is positive.

DRAPER TROTH BROKEN AFTER RAY COUNCIL

Mother Declares Daughter Has Full Support of Her Family.

MISS ALICE IN KENTUCKY

The breaking of the engagement of Miss Alice Marjorie Ray, daughter of Mrs. W. F. Ray of Central street, Franklin, and B. H. Bristow Draper, eldest son of Lieutenant-Governor Eben S. Draper of Massachusetts, has thoroughly startled Boston society. The Rays are the leading family of Franklin and the Drapers are the founders and barons of Hopedale. There was wealth on both sides and rare beauty and charm as an additional dower for the bride.

The Rays are at the head of Franklin industries and own blocks of houses there. The handsome Ray Memorial library is the gift to the town of Miss Ray's father.

It is said by Mrs. Ray, the young woman's mother, and by Mr. Charles Ray, her brother, that the engagement was severed by Miss Ray with the full approval of the family.

After a Full Family Council.

It is evident from this and from the guarded expressions of others that the announcement of the breaking of the engagement by the young woman was made only after a full family council had been held.

At this conference, it is asserted, Miss Ray told her mother and brother plainly that she had broken with young Draper, that the breach could not be healed, that the breaking off of the engagement was mutual and that it remained for the fact to be made known to their friends as soon as the family deemed it advisable.

Miss Ray's arguments were so convincing, it is intimated, that the family made no attempt to effect any change in the conditions.

Fear that she did not truly love her sweetheart, it is now whispered, is responsible for the broken engagement.

Not even the knowledge that society in many cities would be scandled, report from confidential sources says, could induce Miss Ray to trifle with her conscience. As a school girl she had always maintained that never would she marry unless she could give her love sincerely to the object of her choice. In her younger days she declared that, even though she might love a worker in the factories, her wealth would not allow her to prove a traitor to her heart.

Miss Ray Now in Kentucky.

"My daughter," said Mrs. Ray, who is a woman of aristocratic bearing and snow-white hair, "is with her sister, Mrs. Wolfe, in Louisville, Kentucky, and she will remain there for an indefinite period. I am sure that all in Boston society who know about the matter, and every mother, will uphold me and my family."

Mr. Charles Ray, Miss Ray's brother, said:

"On my sister's return from Europe in December the engagement was announced. The wedding was to occur in June and arrangements were in progress. Plans were made for a house in Hopedale to adjoin the Draper home, but the work of building had not been begun.

Miss Ray is universally beloved and admired in Franklin, where she has given time to charitable work. She is twenty-four years old and was educated in a fine academy there and in an exclusive school for girls in the South. She played golf, belonging to the Franklin Country Club, and is a clever horsewoman.

Young Mr. Draper is well known in Boston. He is a graduate of Lawrence and Harvard, and it is said that his family wished him to study law. But he preferred a business career and is learning how to run the family mills at Hopedale.

He is now in New Hampshire, and preparing, it is said, for a long trip in the West.

Miss Ray's father is dead, but with her widowed mother reside the daughter, Alice and Maude, and the sons, Charles and William F. Ray.

SEEK FIREBUG IN FATAL FIRE

Vigorously searching to-day for the incendiary believed to have set fire to the stable of John G. Pugsley, expressman, in Jamaica Plain last night, the police lost no time in finding the freeing responsible for the death of Albert J. McDonald, one of the drivers for the concern, whose charred body was taken from the ruins after the flames had been checked. The fire caused a loss of $20,000.

It was discovered by Patrolman Thomas Leonard, No. 15 Union avenue, who rang and alarm from box 52.

Twenty minutes before the officer found the wagon shed in flames, Miss Elizabeth Barrio, who lives in the house adjoining the wagon shed, saw five or six men walk away from the building.

In the wagon shed were stored all of the teams of the concern, which owns a large express business in Roxbury and Jamaica Plain. Some of the teams contained valuable property that had not been delivered.

Mrs. Rita Leonard, who makes her residence with Mr. Pugsley, and is an invalid, was carried from the blazing building by James Munroe, who resides at No. 13 Union avenue.

The police discovered that he had hired the outfit from a liveryman in Salem.

TOM W. SLUGS ENEMY WITH TON OF GRUB

"Eat 'Em Alive" Lawson Puts Indian Sign on Ex-Senator Clark in Awful Revenge.

DYSPEPTIC DOWN AND OUT

When the midnight train from Boston arrived in New York early to-day a dejected and broken-down man emerged wearily from his car and walked with faltering steps through the station.

The dispatches from New York which give account of this man say he was for my United States Senator W. A. Clark of Montana. As he neared the exit of the station he looked back toward Boston, shook his fist feebly toward his city and muttered in the depths of his spreading beard "Curses."

This story from New York gives a faint idea of the effect of the terrific revenge which Thomas W. Lawson wreaked on his one-time friend and his present enemy on Clark's visit to Boston yesterday.

It was at the dining room in Young's Hotel. Enter Mr. Lawson. The head waiter bows and ushers him to the Lawson table, the one nearest the corner of court street and court square.

Tom Feels Dainty.

Lawson: "Waiter, I don't feel very lively this afternoon. I guess I'll have only a light dinner. Bring me some—"

Enter Senator Clark. Head waiter inadvertently ushers him to table adjoining Lawson and even seats him so he faces Lawson only a few feet away.

Lawson: "Those whiskers. I know 'em. It's Clark."

Clark, sadly: "Waiter, bring me a bowl of hot milk and some wafers which can be easily digested."

Waiter departs.

Clark (aside): "Look at those disgusting people ordering heavy meats and other solid food. Ugh! it's enough to make a dyspeptic lay down and die.

Lawson (aside): "At last I have him. He's dyspeptic. I'll kill him. Hoss waiter. Never mind what I said about having a light repast. My appetite has returned. Never felt better. Gimme the menu. I want a whole lot, lots of meat and pota toes and vegetables and soups and fish and sauces and other things. A big dinner. A BIG DINNER, do you understand?

Waiter: "Yassah."

"Who's the Brute?"

Lawson (raising his voice): "I do like a good feed once in a while; nothing like the red, rare beef to put life in a man."

Clark: "Who's the brute, I wonder?" Looks up and sees Lawson. "My heavens! And he knows I'm a dyspeptic."

Lawson: "Here, waiter, bring me two dozen oysters on the half shell, a bowl of tomato soup, a broiled bluefish, a whole fish, you understand."

Waiter: "Yassah."

Clark: "Will he have no mercy?"

Lawson: "And then I want a roast beef, two big slices, fried, mashed and Delmonico potatoes, some peas, parsnips, onions, mushrooms, cucumbers and a loaf of bread and pound of butter."

Clark: "And I come to this town?"

Lawson (aside): "Watch him writhe. Wait till he sees me eat it. And he can't eat anything except crackers and milk." (raising his voice) "Crackers and milk. Huh!"

String of waiters arrives with Lawson order. Lawson attacks food, smiling with gusto and keeping one baleful eye on Clark.

And Ice Cream, Too.

Lawson—Waiter!

Waiter—Yassah.

Lawson—Now bring me some ice cream, mince pie and a dish of chocolate bon bons.

Clark (growing pale): "He'll never do it. He's not that bilious. Has he no mercy? Gracious! Apparently at Lawson.)

Lawson (noting Clark's pallor)—Now for the finishing stroke. Calls waiter.)

Clark reels in his chair.

Lawson—Waiter, bring me—

Clark (feebly)—Mercy!

Lawson—A Welsh rarebit.

Clark faints.

Lawson—Conquered at last.

Sisters Who Ran Away to Wed Men of Their Choice

FORGIVES DAUGHTERS WHO ELOPED

Mrs. James Hughes and Mrs. John Cliffe, sisters, are going to be happily received when they return home after the wedding trip which followed a double elopement to Providence. They are the daughters of Mrs. Joseph S. Barrett of No. 16 Blaine street, Allston.

Mrs. Hughes was Fannie Barrett, aged eighteen years. Mrs. Cliffe was Mary Barrett, aged nineteen. Their husbands were devoted adulterers of the young women and had been calling at their home for several months.

One night the quartet talked over the idea of an elopement and considered that it would be a good joke all round on their friends and relatives. Laying careful plans they slipped away to Greta Green, secured licenses and were married by the same clergyman.

"They are the ones that will have to worry now," said Mrs. Barrett. "I am not doing any. The boys are all right and I hope the young people will be happy." The first intimation the mother had that her daughters had married was when she was notified by a reporter.

MISS KEMBLE TO WED SOON, SAYS MACKAY

Lillian Kemble and Charles Mackay are not man and wife, but are to be wed at an early date.

This fact was made known by Mr. Mackay himself, in a statement to the BOSTON AMERICAN'S New York office to-day.

Miss Kemble, says Mr. Mackay, has legal obstacles which prevent their marriage at this time, but he has consented to her promise to wed him, and at an early date.

Mr. Mackay's statement to the BOSTON AMERICAN'S as follows:

"In reply to your telegram to Miss Kemble, I am sorry to say that we are not married, but she has done me the honor to promise, at an early date, to be Mrs. Charles Donald Mackay. Her legal difficulty is the only obstacle.

"I am free to marry immediately, which delights me, as at this time last year I was drugged and put in a sanitarium. Good health and happiness have made a new man out of me, and my present success in New York proves it.

Mr. Mackay and Miss Kemble are playing in the same company in New York. Miss Kemble having the leading female role.

WHITE'S ART TREASURES GO UNDER HAMMER

Beautiful Curios in Dead Architect's House to Be Publicly Sold.

SALE ON 3 AFTERNOONS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Stanford White's town house, at No. 121 East Twenty-first street, has long been known as the most superbly artistic private residence in America. Yet on Wednesday next the home will be dismantled at once and completely, at a sale to be conducted on the premises by Mr. Kirby of the American Art Association.

The sale will continue for three afternoons, and will begin promptly at 2:30 o'clock. To prevent a congestion of the morbidly curious a fee of admission will be charged on each day of the sale, but this charge will later be deducted from the price of any article purchased in the collection.

Mr. White ransacked all the countries of the world in his quest of the beautiful, and every school and every period of constructive genius were levied upon. It will be possible to go to this sale and purchase an entire room, with its superb floor covering, its columns, panels, ceiling decorations, fireplaces, hangings and furniture.

Everything is to be dispersed, and as many of the decorative portions are already historic for their European tradition or classic antiquity, this art sale will probably make a record among the great records of the American Art Association.

GIRL GIVES UP FORTUNE FOR MAN SHE LOVES

MIDDLEBORO, March 27.—Casting aside wealth pounded her by an aged grandfather if she would remain with him, Edith Grout chooses to stick to her carpenter suitor. That Cupid's darts make the best laid plans of men "gang agley" is emphasized by the romance which has set all Middleboro talking. The central figures in the little play are a vivacious miss, her aged grandfather and a suitor who refuses to relinquish his claims to the hand of the girl.

The young woman in the case, Edith Forrest Grout, is in her twenty-first year and is a general favorite in Warrentown, where she has made her home with her grandfather, James Carter. John Reed, a Middleboro carpenter, now spending here from Maine to claim Miss Grout as his bride, is said to be the person who is responsible for the breaking of the compact the young woman made with her aged relatives to keep home for him during the remainder of his life. Since her graduation from the Middleboro High School, which took place the latter part of last Sept house for her grandfather. Reed has been a suitor for her hand since he heard her delivered the valedictory address for her class of twenty-three.

Hanged against the young man in his suit has been the aged grandfather, who gave the girl her choice of remaining with him and becoming heir to his property or marrying the man of her choice. Miss Grout was not long in deciding and soon was making her home with an elderly aunt until the time when her suitor can provide a home for her as his wife.

Meanwhile, a brother, Lyron, and his wife, have taken up the cure of the old gentleman and will doubtless be rewarded, while Miss Grout will get nothing for her three years' service save her relative. The grandfather is a Civil War veteran and a widower.

SENATE JAMS THROUGH RECESS COMMITTEE BILL

19 Republicans Vote to Sidetrack Labor Bills—4 Republicans, 12 Democrats Against.

Practically the same influences that last year double-crossed the Overtime Bill in the Massachusetts Senate succeeded, yesterday, 19 to 16, in passing the Taft order referring to a Summer recess committee the anti-injunction bills, the peaceful picketing bills and the employers' liability bills.

The deal went through over the protest of the State Branch of the American Federation of Labor and in the face of remonstrances from most of the labor unions of the Commonwealth. Nobody attempted to defend or explain the farce of an although Senator Frank J. Linehan of Boston called again and again for some such explanation. But no voice was to be raised for the order. That was the voice of Senator Arthur M. Taft of Worcester, who pleaded with the Senate to believe that the Joint Judiciary Committee had been led to take its stand by the suggestion of State Secretary Dennis D. Driscoll of the Federation. In the face of an agreement entered into before the committee by Labor and Capital, Taft said, the committee ought not to be compelled to "back water."

Senators Vahey, Cassidy, Linehan and Mahoney pleaded for a fair, open and manly disposition of the bills.

When the vote was announced, Senator Mahoney gave notice that to-day he will move for reconsideration.

All in Favor of Republicans.

The Cole-Turtle-Taft plan for a Summer committee was supported by Senators Bullock of Worcester, Dean of Bristol, Gaffney of Stoughton, Gallond of Amherst, Garfield of Brockton, Grimes of Reading, Hall of Revere, Jenney of Hyde Park, Johnson of Fitchburg, Keith of Berkshire, Lawrence of Dorchester, Morse of Haverhill, Riley of Woburn, Schuster of Dorchester, Shaw of Manchester, Stevens of Somerville, Taft, Wheatley of North Attleboro and Williams of Attleboro.

All these votes are Republican.

Against the scheme there were counted Senators Bullock of New Bedford, Cassidy of Adams, Chase of Hyde Park, Clarke of Boston, Curley of Boston, Dixon of Boston, Felker of Northampton, Hayes of Springfield, Linehan of Boston, Macleod of Cambridge, Mahoney of Holyoke, McMannus of Lowell, Mellen of Charlestown, Mitchell of Marlboro, Salter of Lynn and Vahey of Watertown.

Of these, Bullock, Chase, Felker and Salter are Republicans. The other twelve are Democrats.

The four absentees are Republicans: Edward J. Bromberg of Boston, Guy W. Cox of Boston, Jeremiah J. Donovan of Lawrence and Charles N. Prouty of Spencer. Senator Donovan was on record with Senator Vahey as dissenting from the recommendation of the Judiciary Committee for the recess game.

Against Labor's Wishes.

The discussion was brief but spirited. Senator Vahey explained how the request for a Summer committee had originally come from Secretary Driscoll, apparently, and how at that time it had been supposed that Driscoll voiced the wishes of organized labor. Senator Vahey told how he had learned that Driscoll was at that time merely expressing his own ideas, as an individual, and how the suggestion had been repudiated by the Federation of Labor. Senator Vahey told of calling Senator Taft's attention to these facts.

"For myself," said Senator Vahey, "I am willing to stay here all Summer, at whatever inconvenience, in order that these great questions may be disposed of by the Legislature."

Senator Taft insisted that the recommendation was made in good faith, that Driscoll had always been supposed to speak for the labor unions on the Hill and that Labor had been taken at its word. Other labor men had joined with Driscoll on the day the request was made. Others, again, were present, and raised no voice in opposition. Attorneys represented the organized crafts and did likewise. Under the circumstances, there was nothing left for the committee to do but make this order and stand by it. Nothing had appeared before the committee as a hearing, he said, to show that Labor has experienced a change of heart.

Warned of Fate of Others.

Senator Cassidy told the Senate about the big all-night meeting of the labor organizations in Boston early last week, immediately following the BOSTON AMERICAN'S expose of the scheme. Labor men, Senator Cassidy declared, until after that meeting of protest that the Judiciary Committee had definitely made this recommendation. The recess order was put before made with full knowledge that it was against the wishes of one of the parties to the controversy.

Senator Linehan pleaded with Taft to do the fair thing by Labor, now that the real desires are known. Taft stood like granite, refusing to be moved.

Senator Jenney argued that a recess committee was the only thing possible if the work of the Legislature is to proceed. Senator Vahey urged a stand-up-and-be-counted course and the order for a month's continuance of the Judiciary Committee's hearings.

It was all to no avail. The whip had been cracked, and the deed went through. Senator Cassidy plainly warned the opponents of the bills that Labor would help other men who had sought to trick and trap the wage earners if the Common wealth.

Nineteen Republicans were willing to take the chance.

WRECKERS THROW FLYER FROM TRACK

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 27.—Train wreckers caused the derailment early today of "First 20," the Keystone Express, eastbound. The engine, two mail cars and a combination baggage and smoker left the tracks between Turtle Creek and Wilmerding and stalled.

None of the cars was overturned and no one in them was hurt. The sleeping coaches remained on the rails as did the day coach, which was behind the smoking car. The derailment was running time on track No. 3, and after the derailment it was found that the switch had also misjointed the west bound main track.

Had not train No. 21, Chicago Limited, been late, it would probably have suffered the fate of No. 20 and would in all probability have been thrown into the creek which runs at the foot of the embankment.

At the scene of the derailment there were found a track wrench and sledge. The wreckers removed the bolts joining the rails and the fish plates.

In the creek a claw-bar, nuts, bolts and a fish plate were also discovered.

At the time of the derailment the train was fortunately slowing up for the switch over signal just beyond a tower, and as a result ran but a few feet off the tracks.

BOWDOIN AND YALE AIDED BY ROCKEFELLER

NEW YORK, March 27.—The first distribution by the General Education Board since it received $32,000,000 in Rockefeller's recent contribution of $52,000,000, is announced. Conditional gifts totaling $625,000 are made to 16 institutions.

The money was divided as follows:

Yale University, $300,000; Princeton University, $200,000; Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., $50,000; Colorado College, Colorado Springs, $50,000; Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss., $25,000.

After making these appropriations, the board voted to give a total of $425,000 to colored schools, no part of which were not made public lest the help of the board should tend to discourage gifts to these schools from other sources.

With the five principal gifts is the condition that the institution shall raise a specified sum independent of the board's contribution. Yale and Princeton are each to raise $2,000,000; Colorado College, $500,000; Bowdoin, $250,000, and Millsaps, $100,000.

These subscriptions were decided upon after the board had considered applications from about 400 institutions.

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—One man is dying, another seriously hurt and two bruises following an automobile accident to-day at Broad and Vine streets which was directly attributable to reckless speeding. The automobile running against the curb was demolished. The occupants were Robert Madden, Joseph Manning, James Carr and Stephen Heddie. Heddie will probably die.

SQUALL BRINGS DEATH AND FIRE TO CHICAGO

Sudden, Furious Storm Floods Streets, Blows Chimneys Down, Injures Many.

INCH OF RAIN IN HALF HOUR

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, March 27.—A man killed, a half dozen stunned, a church destroyed, nine buildings fired, chimneys blown down, five wires torn from their fastenings and on the pavements, telephone and telegraph service hampered, basements flooded, traffic halted and teamsters, cabies, venders, shoppers and pedestrians driven from the street by hail and rain—that was the serious side of a squall yesterday afternoon which lasted just thirty-two minutes.

Prisoners in the basement cells of the Warren Avenue Police Station were rescued from drowning and taken to the Fifty-Third Street station; a crossing policeman became the hero in the thrilling rescue of a laughed mass of lingerie and hosiery from a State street vivalet; the fire department responded to a call sent in from a falling elevator; every patient telephone subscriber who tried to use the telephone at once became called with nearly every other patient subscriber in the book.

During the thirty-two minutes the storm lasted the fall of rain was nearly an inch.

John Moeller, thirty-five years old, was struck by lightning and instantly killed.

Wenzel Hebmey of South Ashland avenue suffered probably fatal injuries when he was shocked and fell from a rear porch.

St. Stanislaus Roman Catholic Church, North Fifty-third street and Belden avenue, Irving Park, was struck by lightning and the fire which followed destroyed the edifice.

OVERTIME BILL PASSES HOUSE, GOES TO SENATE

Under suspension of the rules the Overtime Bill, which was defeated by legislative trickstere in the Senate last year, was passed to be engrossed in the House yesterday. Representative Rea of New Bedford, one of the hardest workers for the bill, asked for the suspension of the rules and the House members were willing. The bill went through practically without a protest.

No bill in the Legislature has been watched with greater interest by labor than this one. Many a salon has gone down to defeat at the polls as a result of his attitude on the question last year.

Unless something happens—as it happened last year—the bill will go through the Senate with a rush. It is the same Overtime Bill, in all its essentials, as the one presented last year.

EDDY SUIT TO BE FOUGHT OUT IN COURT

Lawyer Eastman, for Defendants, Declares That Their Will Be No Compromise.

TRIAL, LIKELY, NEXT WEEK

Special to the Boston American.

NASHUA, N. H., March 27.—All hope of compromising the Eddy suit before it gets into court vanished to-day when former Attorney General E. G. Eastman, who has been retained by the New Hampshire defendants, issued a statement in which he stated that the case would be tried in court and not settled outside.

General Eastman visited Mrs. Eddy at Pleasant View yesterday in company with her personal counsel, General F. S. Streeter of Concord. His utterances to-day are taken to be inspired by Mrs. Eddy's own views. They are antagonistic to any settlement proposition.

"So far as I know," he said, "the case will be tried next week. I sincerely believe that Mrs. Eddy is capable of handling her own affairs, and will anticipate no trouble in making this showing to the court."

Yesterday F. W. Peabody, of the attorneys for Glover-Baker, stated that he would not be surprised if General Streeter, for the defence, in filing his answer at Concord, April 2, pointed to the fact that Mr. Peabody himself had been an antagonist of Christian Science for years, and had lectured against the cult.

In his answer it is also thought that General Streeter will die one of Mr. Peabody's pamphlets upon Mrs. Eddy and Christian Science, and that he will also claim that the suit is not brought in reality by George W. Glover and his other relatives, but by a newspaper, which has been engaged in a controversy for some time with Scientists, and which it may now be claimed is furnishing the funds for carrying on the suit.

TELLS HOW THE HOME MIXTURE IS PREPARED

Simple prescription which is easily mixed for Kidney and Bladder troubles.

SAID TO BE VERY FINE

A large Eastern publication tells its readers of a number of simple and safe prescriptions that can be made at home. The following, however, for the cure of rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles receives the greatest praise, viz., Fluid extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, once ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. These simple vegetable ingredients can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy at little cost and are mixed by shaking well in a bottle.

The dose for adults is a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime, drinking a full tumblerful of water after each dose. It is further stated that this prescription is a positive remedy for kidney trouble and lame back, weak bladder and urinary difficulties, especially of the elderly people, and one of the best things to be used in rheumatic afflictions, relieving the aches and pains and reducing swellings in just a short while.

A well-known local druggist states that the compound Kargon in it does the work. It is the drug which acts directly upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys; cleanses the sponge like organs and gives them power to sift and strain the poisonous waste matter and uric acid from the blood which is the cause of rheumatism.

Cut this out and hand to some sufferer, which would certainly be an act of humanity.

15-Year-Old Girl Killed Babe

Jennie Burch, who slew her employer's child because she loved it, must go to insane asylum.

GIRL KILLED BABE BECAUSE SHE LOVED IT

Fifteen-Year-Old Indian Girl, Lawyers Agree Must Go to Matteawan Asylum.

TRIAL A MATTER OF FORM

Special to the Boston American.

CARMEL, N. Y., March 27.—Jennie Burch, a fifteen-year-old girl, who is on trial for the killing of the baby for whom she was nurse, is destined to life-long confinement in the Matteawan Asylum for the Criminal Insane, according to the lawyers for the defence and the District Attorney. Both the girl's counsel and the public prosecutor believe that the child was a maniac when she poisoned the helpless infant son of Herbert Winship, a wealthy farmer.

Three days later the agonized mother heard this same girl, beside the coffin of the dead baby, confess to murder. She said she did it because she loved the baby.

It has been said that Jennie is a quarter-blood Mohawk Indian, but this is denied by her grandfather, who says that a man of wealth and prominence, who still lives in New York City, is Jennie's father, although she has gone all her life under her mother's family name.

Indian Blood in Girl.

Philo Burch married the daughter of a man with the blood of an Indian chief in his veins. His daughter, Annie, was wild out in the woods alone. She loved to be sixteen her father put her to work in the family of Isaac Field. Isaac Field had a son, Staunton, now a business man in New York city, and the defence has attempted for months to get him here.

After a year in the Field house Annie Burch disappeared. Her corpse was straight to the woods. One night as she lay by her camp fire a brute crept out of the woods toward her. No one knows who he was. Annie Burch woke to fight him off. In her desperation the woman seized a heavy burning brand from the fire and with it beat down the fiend. Turning as he fell she ran until she fell fainting.

Three days later, in the cabin of her father, to which she had dragged herself, a child was born. That child, Jennie Ruth Burch, is the little girl now being tried for murder resulting from violence with fire.

Facts to Be Brought Out.

When the real trial begins it will be brought out that Jennie lived with her grandfather until four years ago, when he gave her to Herbert Winship to bring up; that she was a dutiful, attentive and obedient child; that after the birth of Wilbur Winship Jennie became the devoted slave of the baby; that her affection was so evident that the mother entrusted her baby almost entirely to Jennie.

Her peculiar feeling toward fire, her wild nature and her desire to see things burn will also be shown. Finally it will be testified to that on September 21, 1906, the barn of Herbert Winship was mysteriously burned by an incendiary; that the Winship house caught fire in nine different places; that when she knew she was suspected Jennie went out into her orchard with the baby and came back carrying a peach; that she fed the baby part of the peach and ate the rest herself.

Jennie said she killed the little Winship baby by feeding it with a peach, upon which she had rubbed iodine. She ate part of the peach herself and nearly died. State chemists say that the fatal poison was strychnine.

FORTUNE OF $500,000 COMES TO DOCTOR'S WIFE

Mrs. Ellen T. Gavin of South Boston Gets Big Share of Father's $1,913,000 Estate.

To Mrs. Ellen T. Gavin, wife of Dr. Michael T. Gavin of No. 540 East Broadway, South Boston, has come a fortune of about half a million dollars.

Mrs. Gavin's legacy comes from the estate of her father, Patrick Doherty, who made his fortune in New York by careful investments. The realty was sold at auction yesterday and brought $1,913,000. Previous to the sale the property was appraised for $1,675,000.

Besides Mrs. Gavin there are six grandchildren who share in the fortune. Mrs. Gavin is the only surviving child of Patrick Doherty. She, therefore, comes in for the largest share of the estate.

Mrs. Gavin is prominent in South Boston society. She has lived there for a number of years. Her husband is one of the best known physicians in the city.

MARKET OPENS WITH ADVANCE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 27.—The market opened at general sharp advances. Smelters opened 4¾ higher, Canadian Pacific 3½, Northern Pacific 2⅜, Baltimore & Ohio 2⅜, Anaconda 2, Erie 1½, Union Pacific 2¾, New York Central ¾, Great Northern preferred 2½, Amalgamated 1⅜ to 2¾, and Reading 1¼. New York Central gained an additional ⅝, making 1½ in all.

At the end of five minutes' trading Amalgamated gained 2¼ in all, Reading 1⅞, Canadian Pacific 4, Anaconda 4. The general market retained the initial improvements.

In the last fifteen minutes the market was subjected to realizing sales and professional stocks. But the recessions from the best prices in only a few cases exceeded a full point.

The general market was very irregular and dealings were active. There was evidence of a sharp speculative contest in progress.

LOOM CO. WON OVER DRAPERS

Through an error in a headline in Monday's BOSTON AMERICAN it was made to appear that the Draper Machine Company of Hopedale, of which Lieutenant-Governor Eben S. As a matter of fact Judge Lowell of the United States Court decided against the Draper Company and in favor of the American Loom Company, and this fact was correctly stated in the article which appeared under the headline.

A Startling Revelation

A surprising account of the merits of a remedy is given by John A. Gordan of Fonda, Iowa, who says that it is impossible for him to tell the great amount of good that has been accomplished in his section by Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound. He concludes a glowing description of the great merits of the medicine by a statement that it cured him of a severe case of la grippe in 30 days. It is all the doctor needs in his final test. This medicine, popularized among all the leading civilized nations, is regarded as an effective and speedy remedy in diseases that are the outgrowth of the functionary disturbances of the organs, the accumulated poisoned condition of the blood and the shattered nerve force, the invariable accompaniments of catarrh, rheumatism, neuralgia, scrofula, erysipelas, dyspepsia and stomach troubles. Thirty days' treatment $1.00. All druggists.

WORDS CAN NOT EXPRESS GRATITUDE TO CUTICURA

"Words are inadequate to express my gratitude for Cuticura Remedies. I had been troubled with eczema for five years on my ear and it began to extend on my cheek. I had been doctoring with the best physicians, but found no relief whatever. When informing them that I could not bear the itching I was told by one of our best doctors, "not to scratch." As the medicines and salves did me no good I thought I would get the "Magic Three," Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Pills, coating me one-half of one visit to my physician. After using as directed, with plenty of hot water, I can truthfully state that I found instant relief. When I had used three boxes of Cuticura Ointment and two cakes of Cuticura Soap I found my skin as soft and fine as a baby's. My circle of friends is very large, and I am persuading them to use Cuticura Soap and give up the kinds they were using. I find no trouble as my case has proven to them that if Cuticura Ointment is good, Cuticura Soap must be likewise.

"I hesitate to send you the enclosed picture as it has been lying around in my desk for two years and is very soiled. At the time it was taken my ears were scaly and you will find some remnants of Cuticura Ointment on it, and, to me, it is very precious, as I can now say when looking at it that Cuticura is a blessing, and that is why I have kept it even though it was soiled. THE TREND OF THE TIMES

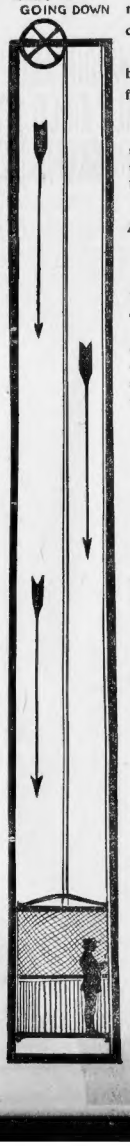
PRICE OF ELECTRICITY GOING DOWN

PRICE OF OTHER NECESSITIES GOING UP



The average price of electricity has been GOING DOWN in Boston—until now, 63 cents will buy as much electric current as would $1.00 in 1897.

The prices of coal, food, clothing have been GOING UP—it takes $1.26 to go as far as would $1.00 in 1897.

The reductions in prices of electricity have been made in Boston by the Edison Company voluntarily in these times of advancing prices—for the good, big business reason that "A pleased customer makes ten."

A most important reduction in rates

Was made last July, when the Company advertised a change from 18 2-10 cents to 15 cents per kilowatt hour.

This reduction was of especial interest to small consumers. Hundreds of business men and residential customers began using electricity for the first time after this reduction was made. Old customers found their bills reduced.

$63,654.32 saved to 14,162 customers in six months (August to February)

This pays both—the public and the company.

The use of electricity in Boston is greater per capita than in any city in the world—because of low prices, efficient service and public appreciation of these facts.

There are REASONS why manufacturers should locate in Boston.

Write for the company's printed schedule of rates. If you are a merchant or a manufacturer wishing a location where surrounding conditions will be best for you, you will find this schedule of prices attractive, as you will all other conditions in Greater Boston. All prices are printed in full—equal conditions bring equal rates always. Ask also for our representative to call in town or out of town. Compare Boston rates with all others.

W. L. DOUGLAS

BEST IN THE WORLD. $3.50 SHOES FOR MEN

Do you wear W.L.Douglas shoes? If not, I believe I can give you good and sufficient reasons why it will pay you to wear them.

I give the wearer the benefit of my thorough and practical knowledge of shoemaking, which has extended over fifty years.

I give the wearer the benefit of my exclusive method of tanning the bottom soles, which makes them more flexible and gives longer wear than any other sole leather produced in this country.

As I am the largest manufacturer of men's fine Hand-Sewed Process shoes in the world, it is necessary for me to purchase leather and other materials in enormous quantities; the benefit of the very low prices I obtain I give to the wearer in superior quality over other makes.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer and are of greater value than any other make.

W. L. Douglas, Brockton, Mass.

For years I have been troubled with tired feet, and found it impossible to get a shoe that gave me relief until I tried W. L. Douglas shoes. M. J. Cole, Hand Bros., 35 Howard St., Boston, Mass.

DEATH KNELL FOR DRESSES BUTTONING UP THE BACK BUTTON DOWN THE FRONT IS THE COMING STYLE

Labor Unions Do as Much for Women as They Do for Men

By Beatrice Fairfax

GIRLS, I want to impress on you the importance of organization. No matter what work you are engaged in stand together.

Some of you may be working under most favorable conditions, others are not: and as co-workers and sisters, the fortunate ones owe allegiance and assistance to those less fortunate.

Those who are badly off can do nothing to better themselves if they work single, but united they are a power.

If you have no union lose no time in forming one. If one is already formed lose no time in joining it.

The unions bring the girls closer together; working for one common good brings out all that is best in one, and the girls who belong to unions have a higher appreciation of their duty to their fellow creatures than the girls who do not.

Object in Life

THE unions also give the girls an interest and object in life and teach them that parties and clothes are not the most important things in the world.

Wherever you find a union you find more satisfactory conditions existing. The employers realise that a band of earnest, determined young women are not to be ignored.

An employer will pay no attention to individual whining and fault-finding, but he has to listen to intelligent complaint.

I would advise every working woman and girl in the country to belong to a union.

The women and girl wage-earners are the most important women and girls in the world. Some of them are already mothers, the rest of them are the mothers of the future. Added to that, they are self-supporting and intelligent. They are all the more intelligent for being union workers.

A Great Leader

AT present there is visiting this country Engand's great women's labor leader, Miss MacArthur.

I had the pleasure of meeting her at luncheon the other day. She is a sweet-faced, earnest young woman with a quantity of soft fair hair and the complexion for which English women are famous the world over.

She thoroughly understands the labor question, and is devoting her entire time to helping her sisters better their working conditions.

If you get a chance to hear her speak in public be sure and take advantage of it.

And think seriously over the union question, girls. Get together and see if you can't start a union, if you do not already belong to one.

The men cannot get on without their unions, why should the women?

New Day Dawns for Long-Suffering Married Men

THERE is coming this way o'er the water from Paris a new fashion that will be greeted with loud cries of joy by twenty-odd million of husbands. Gowns, shirt waists, tea waists, silk waists and tight-fitting jackets are going to button up the front.

The princess gown, with its two-yard studding of boss knobs, is going out. We are to return to the same method of hooking up which we certainly find for all the great army of Benedicts who have been playing the role of lady's maid.

Yes, cable advices from the world's fashion pacemaker say that the sanctity reviled, cussed and cussedly back-buttoner and hook-hooker is no longer smart.

Whoever invented the back-fastening style of female gear and got it billed as a mode has been hiding e or since. He undoubtedly is some cynic, and hates the hymen.

His cynic place was in the dark ages of the past. He should have been on the staff of Torquemada, the head of the Spanish Inquisition, for he provided millions of men with exquisite torture.

Tortured by Their Tasks

Fat husbands with fat wives have been revolving revenge on this device for years. In padded cells in our great brainstorm institutions there are raving, frothing men babbling with the delusion that they are wed to wives nine miles high who have summoned them by the use of the "spriencer," climbing into the clouds to make the last hook fast.

Able statisticians tell us that only one woman out of five thousand is blessed with patience to make fast the little bows of the corset cover and gather in fast knots the girdling braids of the skirt. While she does this her maid makes fast the outer covering.

Such joy, of course, is prodigiously rare. a lady's maid. Therefore there is only one husband to every four thousand nine hundred and ninety-nine who may recline at ease while the wife of his bosom is being hooked.

He may shave in peace as his better half gets into her glove-fitting finery, trims the haltarede taut, adjusts interlining strips. The vast majority of us are summoned to confront the office at the most inopportune moment. It usually happens something like this:

"John, come button me up."

"I am shaving."

"I must be buttoned now."

"Oh, very well. (Ad-dat—D——"

"Look out for that face, now, John, and don't be so fiendishly clumsy."

Hark the Awful Words

"Will you keep your arms down a minute, please. H—— d—— your z——!"

"What are you muttering?"

"Nothing. Will you kindly stop expanding your chest?"

"There, you thumb-fingered boast, you have been cut that hook.

"Why don't you sew in the thing properly, and put down that powder puff till I get through? If I had patience to make fast the little bows of the corset cover and gather in fast knots the abandoned soul that invented this backbuttoning fashion I would hang him up by the thumbs and learn seventeen thousand curse holes in him with a red-hot iron. Gee, but—— D——! Keep still a minute, can't you? I've almost got you hooked.

"Thank you, John, but just look at yourself. You're burst your suspenders and split your trousers up the seams."

Of course, this is a mild rendering of the usual domestic version. The woman was not quite so plump. Gas she been for her husband's part of the dialogue would not be fit for publication.

Since the back hooker came in the divorce rate has increased 50 per cent. Crimin.logists declare that it has raised the average of homicide per capita. The liquor dealers all over the world crown the inventor with a smother of laurel, for untold thousands have been driven to drink by this particular bench of the domestic service.

Just Read This Verse

Before the dress that buttons up the back came in the last time there was a heavenly lapse of about fifty years there was a popular ballad entitled: "And the Dress She Wore—It Buttoned Up the Back." It ran something like this:

"There was a pretty maiden
And her eyes were soft and blue;
But the dress she wore
It buttoned up the back."

Within the past lustrum this once thrilling ditty has been sung only half a dozen times, always with fatal results to the singer. It is said that five of the six were quietly lynched by infuriated throngs of husbands. The other one survived, but his tongue was torn out that he might never again sing the tortuning ditty.

But all this is over now. The front buttoner is coming in again.

BE BEAUTIFUL, THOUGH PLAIN

Learn Secrets of Beauty That Go Beyond Mere Perfection of the Face and Figure

A merry heart goes all the day!
Your sad tires in a mile-t'.
Shakespeare.

THE girl most richly endowed by Nature is the one who is blessed with a cheerful disposition. It is impossible to overrate its value to the fortunate possessor. It carries her triumphantly through the countless difficulties common to all and it helps to lighten other people's burdens.

The woman whose sunny nature calls forth the remark, "she's as good as a tonic" is welcome everywhere. It matters not if her means are small, and she is only passably good looking.

She may be positively plain, but people forget that in the charm of her expression. She cheers them up, and leaves a pleasant memory of her visit behind her, and nothing she says leaves a nasty taste in the mouth of a listener.

The girl who is cheerful because it is her nature to be so never thinks it a bother to be agreeable even to the most commonplace person. She takes a smiling, pleasant interest in everybody, just because she can't help being natural.

How to Be Popular

Everywhere it is the cheerful woman who is popular, in hospital wards the dispirited people, no matter how clever she may be, is not nearly so successful as the bright, cheery girl, wnom patients call a living sunbeam. Some think it almost worth while to be ill if they are nursed by a girl like this.

In a business office the favorite is the girl who does her work cheerfully. She is always willing and does not think she is cheapening herself by being agreeable.

She is not quick to take offence, and as for putting on a superior air, such a thing never occurs to her, and her presence adds agreeableness to the social atmosphere.

Then, how children love a cheerful mother! Their restlessness and ignorance are bound to get them into scrapes sometimes, and thrice-blessed are the children who can own up to a mother who is "a jolly good sort" as a boy once said. "She never rows a fellow when he doesn't deserve it." Such women bring out the very best in children.

Habit of Cheerfulness

If mothers would remember "that perfect love casteth out fear" many little ones would be spared the necessity of fibbing, which is the refuge of the weak against the strong.

Pleasant looks and loving sympathy are more powerful in correcting faults than an outburst of temper and a stern countenance.

The cheerful woman is also a brave woman.

Whatever happens she never pities herself. Possessed of immense vitality she sets about making the best of things. She is a great optimist, and looks on the sprigs out of cheerfulness, and her splendid personality generally has its reward.

Being friendly, she has no lack of friends who are only too glad to help her over a time of trouble, and so her habit of cheerfulness reacts upon herself.

Unfortunately a cheerful disposition cannot be acquired, it must be born with us. A woman who tries to be cheerful but is not naturally so unconsciously acquires an air of patient resignation.

To be cheerful from a conscientious sense of duty lacks the true ring of sincerity. People feel that she is acting a part, and though the majority of people are very superficial, they are quick to recognize the real thing and be influenced by it.

Just as powerfulness and discontent show themselves in the face, so it is impossible to keep a happy disposition from shining out of the countenance.

Cheerfulness, and a knack of looking at the bright side of things, will keep away wrinkles, weariness and often illness.

"THE BRACEBRIDGE DIAMONDS," Or The Heart of a Woman"

By Gregory Townsend

CHAPTER LXXII.—Continued

"YOU do not mean that he has escaped?" cried Frank Breckbridge, for it was he, a look of disappointment on his face.

"I fear so," said Basil Thurston. "Not five minutes ago, Ruth Pritchard came out of her trance and denounced him as the murderer of Raymond Thurston, Mrs. Mueller's brother.

"Never call me by that hateful name again," shuddered Sylvia, bursting into a paroxysm of sobs.

"We will search the house anyway," practically suggested Detective Loftus, who, with his co-worker, Detective Bittinger, had accompanied Frank to The Hollow.

The two detectives, with the aid of Frank and Basil, searched the house from top to bottom. No trace of Mueller could they find. In Nurse Mueller's room they found everything the woman had owned, but she was not there. She had, evidently been warned by Mueller while suffering from her attack of hysterics, and had accompanied him, clad only in a bathrobe and slippers.

The search of the house and grounds continued for more than an hour. The detectives then reassembled in the room with the unerring instinct of those trained to the work.

A cry of delight and triumph from Loftus brought Frank, who, with Basil Thurston, was calmly endeavoring to alleviate the suffering anguish of the two women by his side.

"We've got him after all," shouted Loftus, and Bittinger also evinced his delight with a cry of "Great luck!"

"What is it?" cried Frank, half suited feeling that the detectives had found the man hiding in some nook of the place.

"He can't see far, now, see here!" shouted Bittinger, as he pointed to a spot in the view of Frank. "We found this a few yards from the door where the fugitive had stumbled in their mad flight."

The Pursuit

"What is it?" asked Frank eagerly.

"His railway mileage, for one thing," said Loftus, "and probably all the money he had with him," and he extended a thick roll of bills to the young attorney.

"There is almost a thousand dollars there," said Frank, after a hasty examination.

"Yes, and it's as much as any man is apt to carry with him at any time," suggested Bittinger. "It isn't likely he has more than a few dollars with him now. And it's a certainty that a woman rushing from a house with only a light bathrobe on isn't carrying any money with her. We'll just hang on to that coin and see if Mueller is going to call back here after it."

"No possibility of that," said Frank. "What is the next thing to do?"

"Get busy with the telephone and telegraph," said Loftus. "He can't get far away, at least until some of his friends have been notified by him to send along a little money. In the meantime we'll get him. He won't get away this time."

"That's right," said Basil Thurston, "notify every station and police agency in Ohio. The man must not escape."

From the couch on which Sylvia was reclining, led there by the man whose love she had rebuffed, but whose sheltering arm again seemed naturally to fold about her, came a wailing cry that had in it the very fiend of old.

"No, he must not escape," it came. "The man who has blighted my life; the man who murdered my brother, and who, at the end of the world I will follow him and stop not until he has suffered that which he has brought to me and mine. No matter where the place or when the time, I shall seek him out and deliver him to the justice he has outraged."

The words had scarcely left her pallid lips when there was a rush through the hall and a gasping cry. The door opened with a cry of "Mr. Breckenridge!" "Mr. Braceirdge!" Hudson, always the most impassive of the retinue of meticulous butlers, staggered into the room.

The Airship!

"The airship, Mr. Braceisridge—the airship!" he gasped, collapsing into a chair.

Frank rushed to his side and shook him roughly by the shoulder.

"The airship!" he cried, his face white with excitement. "Has Mueller escaped in it?"

"It is gone, Mr. Braceisridge," muttered Hudson, after Basil had revived him by pressing some brandy to his lips. "A man and a woman came running into the yard half an hour ago and dashed into the barn where you kept the airship."

"Yes, and then?" said Frank eagerly, as the butler paused for breath.

"I saw them running through the yard and followed them into the barn, but I was ordered away by the man with the revolver. But the man was too quick for me. As I stepped into the doorway the man struck me a blow with an iron bar and seized my revolver."

"Yes, yes," said Frank breathlessly, while the detectives followed the tale of the butler impatiently. "Go on—go on."

"Then the man handled the revolver over to the woman, who pointed it at me, while he sprang into the airship and seized the steering wheel."

"Did he understand their use?" shouted Frank, in wonderment.

"As well as yourself," said the butler, "for as the airship started to rise he told the woman to get in.

"Then he stopped for the time. "The baby is in there, isn't it?" he asked her."

Frank gripped Hudson's shoulder with a grasp that made the man flinch with pain.

"They did not take the child?" he said hoarsely.

The butler bowed his head mournfully.

"And where was Katie?" cried Frank.

"Poor Katie," said Hudson, who looked into unconsciousness by that coward who stole in guard over me."

"And then——," said Frank.

Baby Stolen Again

"He lifted the baby from the arms of the poor girl as she lay unconscious on the floor and hurried back to the barn," finished Hudson. "The woman, after taking the revolver from her, and held it pointed at me while the man climbed into the airship.

"Then he ordered me to go out of the barn and to the house, pointing the revolver at me while I did so. I had hardly closed the door of the house when I saw the airship rise from the barn and glide swiftly away."

It is suspected for several weeks—ever since we received the baby, in fact—that Mueller knew I was home," said Frank, thoughtfully, "and that he knew the airship was being built. I have kept a constant watch at possible points, and this morning I have thought that some one had been in the barn during the night. We must have visited it several times, examined it carefully and learned its use.

"How far could he get with it before he has to alight?" asked Bittinger.

"About 500 miles I should judge," said Frank. "I had not left it in readiness for a long trip. But if I know anything of Mueller's nature he is shrewd enough to leave the machine in a secluded place.

"There he will prepare disguises and put the finishing touches to the machine. There is no danger, however, of his leaving the country permanently, for I hold documents which Mueller would risk his life forty times to possess. But there is nothing to be done for the present, so follow me once again. We can only watch and wait."

"Watch and wait," repeated Sylvia in hollow tones. "Aye, watch and wait until my hair is silvered and my hands are palsied, but the watching and waiting will not be in vain."

"I have misjudged you cruelly, Basil," she said, turning to her cousin and laying her pitiful, trembling hands in his, "but you will forgive me, I know, and help me to drag this fiend to justice."

"To the last drop of my blood, Sylvia," said Basil, pressing his lips to her hands.

Sylvia withdrew her fingers from his grasp and raised her right hand to heaven.

"I swear I will never rest until this foul murderer is in my power," cried hysterically, while all shuddered to see the gentle girl had known transformed into this fiendishly revengeful, half-crazed creature. "Raymond, you will be avenged."

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

GIVE HIM A CHANCE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am in a very puzzling position for a girl of eighteen, living away from home, and would like your advice very much.

Two years ago I met a gentleman some years my senior. We didn't keep company steadily till later, and his attentions led me to believe he cared for me and I returned the regard.

Lately I have heard very damaging reports relating to his earlier life involving my name slightly.

Should I ask an explanation of him or wait further developments? I think a great deal of him and would be very unhappy if we became unfriendly.

L. E. T.

THE reports may be true, but I think you should give him a chance to defend himself. It is not fair to believe what others say about him and not hear his side also. I hope he will prove the reports to be untrue.

ASK HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I received an invitation for a party, which says yourself and company. I have no company, and as all the girls are going to bring their beaus I feel as if I would like to bring one, too.

I know a young man whom I am very fond of, have been in his company, but he has never asked me to go anywhere with him. Do you think it would be proper for me to ask him to go to the party with me?

M. T.

I do not see why you should not invite him as long as you are sure that no other girl has a prior right to his attentions. You will be delighted to accept your invitation.

SHORTLY after this talk Bob left for Europe with Beulah. A great German expert on brain disorders had held out hope that a six months' treatment at his sanitarium in Berlin might aid in restoring her mind.

They returned the following June. The trip had been fruitless.

It was plain to me that Bob was the same hopelessly desperate man as when he left, more hopeless, more desperate, if anything, than when he warned me of his determination.

When he left for Europe "the Street" breathed more freely, and as time went by and there was no sign of his confidence disturbing influence in the market, the "System" began to bring out its deferred deals.

Times were ripe for setting up the most wildly inflated stock high-financing trust. It had been advertised throughout the world that Tom Reinhart, now a two-hundred-time millionaire, was to consolidate his and many other enterprises into one gigantic trust with twelve billions of capital.

His Union and Southern Pacific Railroads, his coal and Southern lines, together with his steamship company and lead, iron and copper mines, were to be merged with the steel, traction, gas and other enterprises he owned jointly with "Standard Oil" itself.

The trust was to be an enormous holding company, the like of which had until then not even been dreamed of by the most daring stock manipulators.

"The "System's" banks, as well as trust and insurance companies throughout the country, had for a long time been getting into shape by concentrating the money of the country for this monster trust.

It was newspaper and news bureau gossip that Reinhart and his crowd had bought millions of shares of the different stocks involved in the deal, and it was common knowledge that upon its successful completion Reinhart's fortune would be in the neighborhood of a billion.

On October 1st, the certificates of the Anti-People's Trust, $12,000,000 capital, 120,000,000 shares, were listed upon the New York, London and Boston Stock Exchanges, and the German and French bourses, and trading in them started off fast and furious at 100.

The public that saw billion of the twelve billions capital had been set aside to be used in investing and manipulating, the stock in the market had been so widely advertised that even the most daring plunger did not think of selling it short.

It was evident to all the gambling world that this was to be the "Syndicate" grand coup, that as its completion the masses would be rudely awakened to a realization that their savings were invested in the combined American industries at vastly inflated values, that the few had all the people's money, and that any attempt upon the people's part to regulate and control the new system of robbery would be fraught with unparalleled disaster—not to the "System," but to the people.

Reappears

Since Bob's return from Europe I had seen him but a few times. Up to October 1st he had not been near the Stock Exchange of "the Street."

Shortly after the listing of the "People Be Damned," as "the Street" had dubbed the new trust, he began to show up at his office regularly.

This was the condition of affairs when Fred Brownley called me up on the telephone, as I related at the beginning of my story, which I did not realize I had been so long in telling.

My thoughts had been chasing each other with lightning-like rapidity back over the last five years and the fifteen before them, and each thought deepened the black mist over my personal mental vision. In the midst of my reflections my telephone rang again.

"Mr. Randolph, for Heaven's sake have you done nothing yet?"

It was Fred Brownley's voice.

"Things are frightful here. Bob's brokers are selling stocks at five and ten thousand at clips. Barry Conant is leading Reinhart's forces.

"It is said he has the pool's protection order in Anti-People's and that it is unlimited, but Bob has the Reinhart crowd pretty badly scared.

"Sears has just finished giving Conant a hundred thousand off the reel in 10,000 lots and he told a friend that he was going over to get Bob himself to face Barry Conant.

"They're down twenty points on the average, although they haven't the Anti-People's break an eighth yet.

"They have it scheduled at 108, but there is an ugly rumor just in that Bob, under cover of a general attack, is unloading Anti-People's on to Reinhart, Sears, Rogers and Rockefeller, and the rumor is getting in its work.

"Even Barry Conant is growing a bit nervous. The latest bit of gossip around is borrowing hundreds of millions on Anti-People's, and that his loans are called in all directions.

"Do you know Reinhart is at his place in Virginia, and cannot get here before tomorrow night? If Bob succeeds in Anti-People's peg it will be the worse crash yet.

"All right, Fred," I answered, "I will go over to Bob's right now. I hate to do it, but there is no other course."

I dropped the receiver and started for Bob's office. As I went through the outside room one of the clerks said:

"They have just broken Anti-People's to 90 on a bulletin that Tom Reinhart's wife and only daughter have been killed in an automobile accident at their place in Virginia.

"They first had it that Reinhart himself was killed. That has been corrected, although the latest word is that he is badly injured."

I rapped on Bob's private office door. I felt the coming struggle, as I heard his hoarse bellow, "Come in."

He stood at the ticker, with the tape in one hand, while with the other he held the telephone receiver to his ear.

Desperation

My God, what a picture for a stage! His magnificent form was erect, his feet were as firmly planted as if he were made of bronze, his shoulders thrown back as if he were withstanding the rush of the Stock Exchange hordes, his eyes afire with a soul-fire, smouldering blaze, that was in such a way that brought into terrible relief the new, hard lines of desperation that had recently come into his face.

His great chest was rising and falling as though he were engaged in a physical struggle; his perfect, fitting, heavy black Melton cutaway coat, that clung to form the chest, and a low, turned-down, white collar framed the setting for a throat and head that reminded one of a forest monarch at bay on the mountain top awaiting the coming of the hounds and hunters.

I hesitated at the threshold to retain my breath as I took in the terrific figure.

Had Bob Brownley been an enemy of mine I should have backed out in fear, and I do not confess to more than my fair share of cowardice.

Inwardly I thanked God that Bob was in the office instead of on the floor of the exchange. His whole appearance was frightful.

He showed in every line and lineament that he was a man who would hesitate at nothing, even at killing, if he should find a human obstacle in his road and his mine should suggest murder.

He was the personification of the most awful madness. Even after the first shock of me he hardly moved, although my coming must have been a surprise.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

YOUNG MAN IN BED OVERCOME BY GAS

Walter Howarth, eighteen, was found in an unconscious condition from gas flowing from an open jet in his bedroom, 70½ Goodwin place, West End, to-day. He was removed to the Relief Hospital and will recover. Howarth says it was an accident.

A Voice From The Stomach

A Bloodless Fight Between a Tablet and a Habit—The Tablet Wins.

At the age of 23 Clarence had good digestion. He had gastric juice that could dissolve doughnuts and turn apple-skins into good blood corpuscles.

At the age of 24 he began to be profuse about the waist and lean backwards. He also began to cultivate several chins. In his new-found pride he began to think it his duty to gorge himself on everything, the good and the bad, for appetite feeds on appetite—and every good thing is abused.

His pictures showed that he took on weight after he put his collar on.

At the age of 26 Clarence married and went to boarding. On top of all this he attended oyster suppers and wine dinners, which reduced the size of his collar from 16½ to 15. He still abiding faith in the strength of his stomach he gulped his meals and chewed them afterwards.

At the age of 28 Clarence began to hear an inward voice—a warning from the stomach. After each meal he would feel bloated—and belching became a habit.

He began to be a light eater—and a heavy thinker. He tried to think out a cure, for now he would sit down at his meals absolutely disgusted at the thought or sight of anything to eat.

He would sit down at his meals without a trace of an appetite, just because it was time to eat.

He would often feel a gnawing, unsatisfied, "still-hungry" feeling in his stomach, even after he was through eating, whether his meal was well cooked or not.

And he suffered a good many other things with his stomach that he could not explain, but that made him grouchy, miserable, out-of-sorts and generally sour on everybody and everything.

Finally he read an account, something like this, about the truly wonderful results obtained from Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in all cases of Stomach trouble, dyspepsia and so on. He bought a 50c box at the drug store, and took the whole box. When he started, he had little faith—and less appetite. When he finished he had absolute faith—and more appetite, and more good cheer. Things began to taste different and better to him.

Now he has no more dyspepsia, no more indigestion, no more loss of appetite, brash, irritation, burning sensation, heartburn, nausea, eructations, bad memory, or loss of vim and vigor.

Remember, one ingredient of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest for you 3,000 grains of food, just as it did for Clarence.

This relieves your stomach of the work of digesting until your stomach can get strong and healthy again. Your stomach has been overworked and abused. It's fagged out. It needs a rest.

Let Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do the work of your stomach. You will be surprised how fine you'll feel after eating, and how lusciously good everything will taste to you.

Send the call of the stomach now! There's a world of good cheer in one box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets,—at any drug store, 50c.

STATE BOARD INTERVENES TO END STRIKE

Garment Workers and Employers to Submit Testimony In Labor War.

EIGHT MORE FIRMS YIELD

The State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration intervened in the garment workers' strike to-day.

While the union workers were receiving reports showing that since 10 o'clock last night eight more employing firms have yielded to the demands of the union they were notified that the state board had taken up the strike. The employers and the unions will both submit testimony to this body.

The strikers held meetings at Stillman's Hall, No. 46 Stillman street, to-day. Agents of the unions reported that 125 workers had gone back to work in eight shops today in which the unions had been recognized. Four hundred returned to work yesterday after thirty-two firms yielded. There are now between 1,500 and 1,600 on strike.

One hundred and twenty workers have joined the union since the strike began and all the union men are confident of winning.

Among the firms that have been among the latest to yield have been the Gilbert coat and Cloak Company, which employs 200 workers; the American Ladies' Suit Company, which employs 25 workers, and the H. Miller Company, which employs 30.

The unions in this strike are fighting only and the enforcement of the conditions where are no demands as to wages or hours.

PLAN EGG GAME FOR COMMON

Patterning after the games conducted on Easter Monday in the grounds of the White House in Washington, the Sojourner Truth Circle of the Northampton street will conduct a children's day on the Common next Monday. Included in the features will be an egg rolling contest, for which the space surrounding the Soldiers' monument will be utilized. The contest will be the first of the kind ever conducted in Boston, and school children who wish to be eligible will be asked to bring colored eggs with them.

Brookline Girl Crossing Continent to Wed Alaskan

MISS E. DELLA BERT

GOES WEST TO WED HER SUITOR OF SCHOOLDAYS

Miss Emilie Della Bert, one of the prettiest society girls in Brookline, is now on the way to far-off Seattle, where she will become the bride of Mr. James J. Andrews, the Alaskan representative of Cudman, Barrows & Co., wholesale grocers. Mr. Andrews fell in love with Miss Bert in their schooldime days, and when young manhood arrived was a suitor for her hand.

They became affianced and he went to Alaska to win a fortune in commercial pursuits. But when he returned to Boston to make her his wife, she told him that he had not read her heart aright and her love had cooled. But he did not despair. He left the continent to see her every time business would permit and at last time his business would permit and at last his faithful suitor touched her heart anew. This time, she makes the long journey for the ceremony which is to unite their lives.

Miss Bert is the niece of Mr. J. Edwin Beckman, a wealthy Brookline manufacturer.

OPEN SOCIAL WAR ON THE ROOSEVELTS

Mrs. Wadsworth Fires First Broadside by Invitations to Easter Ball.

SNUBS MRS. LONGWORTH

By Boston American Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Little skirmishes have ended; sorties and returning salvos have had their nights; now the two great parties in Washington are lined up for the battle that will settle supremacy.

What's that? Washington no longer a fighting ground because Congress has adjourned? That comment shows how little its maker knows. The phrase, "the two great parties," in this case does not mean Republicans and Democrats. Pooh, for politics!

"The two great parties" means the Mrs. Roosevelts and the Mrs. Wadsworths. The latter clientele has fired the first broadside in the big fight in the form of a few hundred invitations for a dance in Rauscher's on Easter week. Thereby she has caused a great flutter.

Once Mr. Nicholas Longworth and Miss Harriet Wadsworth were as intimate as Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. James Wadsworth, Sr., but that was before the beef investigation. Now the current has taken in the big family, for young James Wadsworth married Alice, second daughter of John Hay. She was always haughty, and she supports to the hilt Mrs. Wadsworth opinion of the Roosevelt attitude. That is the unfriendly opinion of Mrs. Payne Whitney, formerly Miss Helen Hay.

Mrs. Longworth has not been invited to the Wadsworth ball, and will not be. Her friends say she does not care a copper, and may add in getting up a ball on the same day.

HUB HOTEL MEN TO RAISE PRICES

Occupants of Boston apartment houses must pay more for their table board, to the extent of about $2 an individual per week, beginning next Fall.

The raise is to be a concerted one, according to present plans, and it is the result of the recent formation of an organization known as the Metropolitan Hotel Company, said to embrace the managers of all the leading hostelries in this city.

The high prices of provisions is cited as one of the necessary reasons of the change.

SAYS STEVENS QUIT FROM HOMESICKNESS

"Deadly homesickness" was the reason for the resignation of Chief Engineer Stevens from his Panama Canal position, declared Robert C. Beamer, a graduate of "Tech," before the Instructors' Club of the institute, last evening. Mr. Pettibone has recently returned from the isthmus.

Women Avoid Operations

When a woman suffering from female trouble is told that an operation is necessary, it, of course, frightens her.

The very thoughts of the hospital, the operating table and the knife strikes terror to her heart.

It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after an operation has been decided upon as the only cure. The strongest and most grateful statements possible to make come from women who by taking made from native roots and herbs, have escaped serious operations, as evidenced by Miss Rose Moore's case, of 307 W. 26th St., N.Y. She writes:—

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of the worst form of female trouble and I wish to express to you my deepest gratitude. I suffered intensely for two years so that I was unable to attend to my duties and was a burden to my family. I doctored and doctored with only temporary relief and constantly objecting to an operation which I was advised to undergo. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it cured me of the terrible trouble and I am now in better health than I have been for many years."

This and other such cases should encourage every woman to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before she submits to an operation.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised.

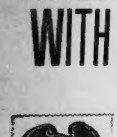
WHOLE WORLD OF SPORTS COVERED FOR THE BOSTON AMERICAN BY ITS CORPS OF EXPERTS

TAYLOR WILL CONFER WITH JOHNSON TO-DAY

BY A. H. C. MITCHELL.



A. H. C. Mitchell, Baseball Expert for the Boston American.

WEST BADEN, Ind., March 27.—President John I. Taylor of the Boston Club is in Chicago to-day having a talk with Ban Johnson. The most important topics under discussion are the resignation of Chick Stahl as manager of the club and the Freddie Parent case. Before leaving here last night Mr. Taylor called the little shortstop aside and made another effort to get him to sign a contract. But Parent would no recede from his ultimatum. Parent's terms or nothing is Parent's way of looking at the matter. Mr. Taylor said to me as he was taking the train:

"It is true I have offered a contract to Parent at about 10 per cent. reduction from the salary he received for the past two seasons, but I have offered to put in writing in the contract that I will make up this reduction at the end of the season if he plays good ball. I agreed that the question of whether he makes good or not shall be left entirely to Chick Stahl. This seems to me a very fair proposition, and as Parent will not accept, it looks as though he was not confident of filling the bill. He has been liberally treated ever since he became a member of the club. He has been drawing, I believe, more money than any other shortstop in the league, with the possible exception of Bobby Wallace of St. Louis, who had a long contract with his club, signed at the time the American League got him away from the Nationals several years ago. I have gone the limit with Parent and it is up to him to say yes or no."

Stahl Puts Away First Square Meal in Days

Stahl's resignation is still being widely discussed by the players. Stahl, himself, did not put on a uniform for the first day's practice at the Springs. He rested quietly on the hotel piazza all day. However, he succeeded in disposing of the first good meal he has been able to negotiate for several days. He has started in drinking the waters here, which are said to be invaluable for stomach troubles, and this morning he said he believed he would be all right by the time the team is ready to leave the Springs.

To-day the regulars and Yannigans are booked to play an exhibition game at French Lick Springs, about three-quarters of a mile from here. One can walk the distance in fifteen minutes easily, but it takes just as long to go by trolley, as the dinky little line that connects the two resorts makes a zuke-like course in its travels. Tom Taggart of Indianapolis, who owns about everything in French Lick, has promised to have a special trolley car ready for the boys at 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. The game will be played on a diamond made out on the golf links. There are small trees in the outfield, but the Bostons are used to these, as they were plentiful on the grounds at Macon, where the boys trained many seasons.

Players All Fall in Love with Springs.

Pat Powers, president of the Eastern League, arranged the game for Mr. Taggart. All hands are more than pleased with the quarters here and strong arguments are being fired at President Taylor to have him arrange a stay of at least two weeks when the team trains next season. It will not take much pressure to make Mr. Taylor yield, for he is in love with the place, too. The question of weather is the only thing that stands in the way. Bad weather makes the best training camp in the world look like a dead one. With the exception of Stahl and Guerin all the boys are in grand shape. Guerin is suffering from stomach trouble.

Instead of finding cold weather, the boys have found the temperature here nearly as high as we left it in Little Rock and Louisville. The players had a fine workout on the ball field, which is situated within a covered bicycle track, three laps to the mile. This track was built when cycle racing was on the boom and noted cyclists used to train here. Now the track is used for a promenade and while our boys practiced the guests of the hotel strolled out on the track and watched them.

The diamond was not ready for use, as the recent flood put it under water and the skin dirt surface was crusted. A gang of workmen shoveled off the crust and it was all ready for the boys when they went out for the morning's work.

The hotel is built in the shape of an immense circle, with a large open space covered by a glass dome in the center. This open space is larger by far than the Cyclorama Building in Boston. There are shops within the walls of this open space.

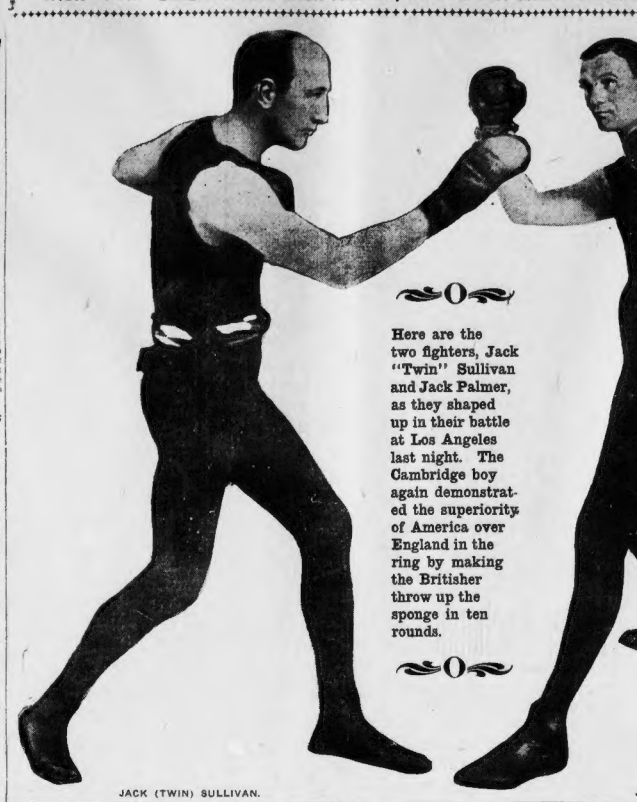
Make Boys Victims of Famous Badger Hoax.

There is music at night and the boys are having the time of their lives. They are to be here only four days. They wish the stay was to be four weeks. On Saturday they go to Indianapolis for a game and on Sunday open a series in Cincinnati.

Last night they pulled off the famous West Baden hoax called the "dog badger fight." Freddy Parent was the victim, with Dougherty, O'Connell and Professor Green running him a close second. For the benefit of those who have never run up against this game, it may be said that the colored employees of the hotel announced a fight between a dog and a badger. They sold tickets at twenty-five cents a head. About 200 guests of the hotel, including the entire Boston delegation, fell for it.

At the appointed hour the dog began to bark and snort furiously, but the badger did not appear. The colored master of ceremonies said the badger sometimes weighed fifty and tried to be carried in by four men. Finally the badger was carried to the ring and the little fellow, amid tremendous excitement, gave a mighty heave and drew out from under a rampled carpet a bag of oyster shells. The players laughed at Freddie for two hours by the watch.

JACK "TWIN" SULLIVAN AND JACK PALMER, WHO MET IN GREAT INTERNATIONAL FIGHT



JACK (TWIN) SULLIVAN. JACK PALMER.

Here are the two fighters, Jack "Twin" Sullivan and Jack Palmer, as they shaped up in their battle at Los Angeles last night. The Cambridge boy again demonstrated the superiority of America over England in the ring by making the Britisher throw up the sponge in ten rounds.

Los Angeles Fight by Rounds

Palmer on His Knees but Sullivan Helps Him Up.

ROUND TWO—Twin led with left to stomach but fell short. Palmer came in with left; they clinched. Palmer drove his glove under Twin's chin, and shoved it back. Both reached each with rights. Palmer shot straight left to Twin's face and then got in a smacker on stomach. Both backed heads and came in to closer quarters, Sullivan shooting left to Palmer's body. Sullivan's right had went over Palmer's head and they straightened up. The Englishman put straight left to Twin's mouth. Sullivan caught Palmer on the side of head with a hook in leading. Palmer slipped to his knees and Sully helped him up. Twin sent the Englishman back with a left to face and followed it with right to jaw. Palmer followed left swing and almost fell again. They exchanged light body blows as round closed. Sullivan's round.

ROUND THREE—Sully easily blocked Palmer's left lead and tossed off a couple more as they came into a clinch. Palmer's leads missed and they went at it again, Twin crossing the Englishman with a hard right to jaw. In close quarters Sully reached Palmer with left to stomach. Palmer tried hard with his right to head, but was blocked. Sullivan shot in left to face but the English man retaliated with stinging left to stomach. Sullivan reached face with left and then landed hard to wind. They clinched. Sullivan blocked Palmer's lead repeatedly, and the Englishman was unable to land effectively. Palmer rushed and Sullivan almost carried him off his feet with left to the face. Sullivan shot straight left with left to the face and left to the stomach. Twin went right after his man, shooting rights and lefts to the stomach, and then shifting to the head. A stiff right to the jaw and a left to the pit of the stomach sent Palmer to the floor with a thump as the gong sounded.

Sullivan Has Palmer Going as Gong Sounds.

ROUND FOUR—Sullivan opened with another left to stomach. Twin missed to head and they clinched. Sully feinted Palmer into a corner and falled to land. A straight left reached Palmer's swelling right eye and, getting Palmer against the ropes, Sullivan sent in telling rights and lefts to the head which made Palmer gasp. Twin reached Palmer's head with left and almost sent him to the floor. Then in close quarters Sullivan shot rights and lefts to Palmer's body and face at will. Palmer wobbled about as if ready to drop. Sullivan shot his left and right to face repeatedly and had the big fellow going at the gong. The big Englishman tried occasionally to swing at Sullivan's head, but failed to land and in the round closed he was backing around the ring, trying to ward off.

Palmer But a Child in Sullivan's Hands.

ROUND FIVE—Sully got a straight left to the face and proceeded to follow his man around the ring, pecking him with right and lefts to head. Twin easily tossed off the Englishman's leads. Two telling lefts in the pit of the stomach made Palmer wince. Mr. Merger cross to the jaw made Palmer back away. Sullivan followed him around the ring, shooting right to head and left to stomach. The Englishman was a child in the hands of the shifty Boston fighter and was not even making an interesting fight. Sullivan had no trouble reaching the head and body at will. Hard lefts to the stomach sent the Englishman into his own corner making every effort to cover up and avoid punishment. Occasionally Palmer would tear loose with right or left swings but not once in a dozen landed. Palmer had not yet gotten in an effective blow.

Sullivan Blocked All the Englishman's Leads.

ROUND SIX—Palmer came up with a worried look on his face. Sullivan was cornered himself during the early part of this round with blocking Palmer's leads and sticking in occasionally a light blow. Palmer tried with light left to body and hit rather low. In close quarters Sully got two lefts to the stomach. Backing Palmer into his own corner, Sullivan shot over a hard right to the head and then repeated the dose with his left. Sullivan followed Palmer every time he tried to lead, and when he rushed in met him with uppercuts to face and body. Palmer reached the jaw with left and Sullivan landed effectively with right cross and then a left.

Palmer Is Cautioned for Using His Elbow.

ROUND SEVEN—Sullivan came over to meet his man, apparently determined to settle things. Three lefts smacked into Palmer's face and then a right disturbed his nose. Palmer was in love with straight lefts but Sullivan beat him to it. Palmer missed and went to one knee. He remained down a second to rest. Getting up he found Twin on to Sullivan's neck and in close quarters was cautioned by referee against the use of elbow. Palmer staggered as if ready to fall and as Sullivan came in the Englishman delivered a wild right which Twin ducked. The Britisher got left to stomach and followed with right and they went into clinch. Sullivan tapped the nose with left and then hammered the wind with a couple of rights.

Palmer Knocked Down Three Times by "Twin."

ROUND EIGHT—Sullivan sent in three rights and lefts to Palmer's raw face. Palmer got in right to chin and missed a left. Both blocked. Sullivan landed to the chin and Palmer returned it. Twin set himself and shot in right to jaw. They went into long clinch and Sullivan forced his man to the ropes. Sullivan tossed off right to the head and shot a straight left to the nose. Palmer kept wading in, trying to land. Sully could do little damage. They backed about the ring without a blow being landed. Then Sullivan got in a hard one as he rushed in with a terrific left full to the stomach. Palmer went down and took the count of eight. Then he went down for the count of nine. A right to the back of the head as Palmer rose sent him to the floor once more, and he was on all fours when the gong sounded.

Hopeless Fight, Gong Saves Palmer Again.

ROUND NINE—The rest did Palmer very little good and he was in a helpless condition when he came up. He tried to stall and Sullivan whipped three blows to the kidneys. Palmer went to the floor after missing a swing and took the count of 8. Sullivan put left to stomach and they clinched. Two more lefts to stomach made Palmer grunt. Sullivan sent a series of lefts into Palmer's face and the Englishman held on in a clinch. Palmer was making a game effort, but it was a hopeless struggle for him. The gong saved him again.

Towel Tossed in as Palmer Is on Floor.

ROUND TEN—The Englishman could hardly get out of his chair when the gong sounded, and Sullivan came over to meet him. Twin took his time and, in close quarters, tapped a few to the back of Palmer's neck. A left caught Palmer full in the face as he backed away. Sullivan shot rights and lefts to the head and a right to the kidneys. Palmer was so weak he wobbled after each exchange. Sullivan hit him in the back of the head and a very light left sent the Englishman staggering across the ring. Two lefts in the stomach caused Palmer to clinch and hold on. As they came out of a clinch Sullivan got a right over to the jaw and as Palmer went to the floor a towel was tossed into the ring.

AUTOISTS WILL NOT FIGHT THE REGISTRATION BILL

BY J. C. KERRISON.

It is understood on what is considered most excellent authority that the Massachusetts State Automobile Association will not fight the proposed bill calling for an annual registration of motor vehicles. The officers of this association recognize that in a measure motor vehicles are injurious to the roads, as now constructed, and therefore will favor a nominal annual registration fee, and advocate the construction of roads in the future of such construction and workmanship as will best withstand the wear and tear given by motor vehicles and other means of rapid locomotion.

By this it is not to be understood that the association favors a high rate for registration but rather one merely nominal, which, while small in its individuality, will collectively make a sum total that will be of value to the highway commissioners in their so-called road maintenance fund.

The bearing to-morrow will unquestionably bring forth a large attendance, and the position which will be taken on the matter by the State association will be rather surprising, especially to the legislators who have gotten into the belief that every time a motor measure which might be introduced by other than motor fans, would receive a hard kind of hard treatment from those who motor.

L. H. Perlman of New York, the man who drove the Welch car from New York to Boston during the endurance run, takes exceptions to the contentions made by Kelsey in the Matheson car, who later the same week, made a magnificent run between these cities. Mr. Perlman is not looking for the scalp of the Matheson driver, and offered to wager that he, with the same Welch car he drove on his 500-mile run, could beat the time of Kelsey of course to use the same car that he drove on his New York-Boston trip. Such a contest would make interesting going, and do much to settle all claim and contentions as to which is the speediest car.

In behalf of Mrs. Metzger, Mr. Fuller's machine will have the sympathy of a host of friends extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

President Lewis R. Speare of the Bay State Automobile Association seems to be having an end of experiments on his hands. Last Summer he heroically drove the car into a pond to demonstrate that on Monday evening he had the pleasure, with much of such kind of sport, of ceremoniously appointed garage and three cars in the pond. Monday bonfires and garage will be of asbestos, he says.

REGULARS WON OVER YANNIGANS

Special to the Boston American.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., March 27.—In a whirlwind finish at Fair grounds park yesterday the Yannigans made a desperate attempt to tie up the game and came very near succeeding. Result, Regulars 9, Yannigans 8. The charley horse in President Dovey's right leg was all that prevented a tie.

Ritchey on second base did splendid work yesterday. Only one error was recorded against him. Bourelle made a phenomenal catch while in centre field, catching one deep in the field by jumping and hauling it down with one hand. Bridwell at shortstop showed up good. He took a desperate chance at a hot one off the bat of Lindaman and won. Manager Yeamy performed the feat of making a home run on a bunt. A pair of wild throws assisted him, however. Bates and Brush both got two clean home runs. Sam Bevern was out of the game on account of a sprained little finger on his right hand. Flaherty played for the first time in several days.

STAR SKATERS MEET IN PACE RACE TO-NIGHT

Faster than any race ever put on the glimmering surface will be the bike paced event at the Park Square rink to-night, when Clarence Hamilton, the swiftest thing on skates in this section of the country, and Fred White, who thinks that he can take Hamilton's measure, meet to an event of ten miles with star bike riders to draw them out to their limit of speed.

Hugh McLean and Will Stinson, the giants in the pace bike game, will do the pacing, and it will be a race between them to beat any other, as it is a matter of rivalry among the professional pace riders.

White comes to Boston for revenge on Hamilton for beating him in the six day race and will make an extreme effort to beat the speedy counter who is taking all his laurels.

The race should furnish some novel sport, as it is the first time that such a contest has been staged anywhere, and it will be a slashing race from start to finish.

The skaters will toss for pacemaker, and it will be up to Stinson and McLean to show his ability to carry their men along.

TUFTS 1ST, 5; TUFTS 2D, 4.

Tufts first team defeated the second team 5 to 4 in a lively game on the old campus yesterday afternoon. Atwood, who pitched for the second team, held the first team down to six hits. At bat he made two hits.

Smashing the Piano Trust

We Licked the Combination in 22 Cities Lately

Our agents swooped down upon 22 New England cities, armed with Uncle Sam's best ammunition—good old greenbacks—and bought every piano that they could lay their hands on. The Trust, with their Dealers and agents who have been tied up to the combination, and who have been making the people pay for Trustification at the point of the gun, have shown in our fight with the Trust, and surrendered to us best prices ever made, and we have got the goods. Every piano we sell will prove to the public that the Trust has been charging from 200 to 400 per cent. more for their pianos than the mural law allows. Our prices are from one-third to one-half less than the Trust will sell to. Help us to fight the Trust and we will make it worth your while. Call if you can and call early.

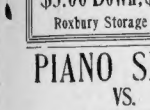
PIANO SENSE VS. NONSENSE



When you are thinking of buying a standard make of piano, one with a well established reputation, you want to know the exact price. If you buy it save 25% to 50% on the price you would pay at home but if you buy of second hand you must know the reasonable price. This last reasonable price depends entirely wholly on the age and condition of the piano. Well, you read several different prices in the papers about pianos, one your piano sells for $150, another $175, and you cannot see for the difference. You must find the difference by personal investigation. It is nonsense to think you can buy any piano worth having for a few dollars. Make your careful investigation of the standard makes in our warerooms. Bargain list of 50 second hand pianos sent upon application. Every piano guaranteed as represented. Buy now and save money.

WHOLE WORLD OF SPORTS COVERED FOR THE BOSTON AMERICAN BY ITS CORPS OF EXPERTS

TAYLOR WILL CONFER WITH JOHNSON TO-DAY

A. H. C. Mitchell, Baseball Expert for the Boston American.

BY A. H. C. MITCHELL.

WEST BADEN, Ind., March 27.—President John I. Taylor of the Boston Clubs is in Chicago today, having a talk with Ban Johnson. The most important topics under discussion are the resignation of Chick Stahl as manager of the club and the Freddie Parent case. Before leaving here last night Mr. Taylor called the little shortstop aside and made another effort to get him to sign a contract. But Parent would no recede from his ultimatum. Parent's terms, or nothing is Parent's way of looking at the matter. Mr. Taylor said to me as he was taking the train:

"It is true I have offered a contract to Parent at about 10 per cent. reduction from the salary he received for the past two seasons, but I have offered to put in writing in the contract that I will make up this reduction at the end of the season if he plays good ball. I agreed that the question of whether he makes good or not shall be left entirely to Chick Stahl. This seems to me a very fair proposition, and as Parent will not accept, it looks as though he was not confident of filling the bill. He has been liberally treated ever since he became a member of the club. He has been drawing, I believe, more money than any other shortstop in the league, with the possible exception of Bobby Wallace of St. Louis, who had a long contract with his club signed at the time the American League got on an easy from the Nationals several years ago. I have gone the limit with Parent and it is up to him to say yes or no."

Stahl's resignation is still being widely discussed by the players. Stahl, himself, did not put on a uniform for the first day's practice at the Springs. He rested quietly on the hotel piazza all day. However, he succeeded in disposing of the first good meal he has been able to negotiate for several days. He has started in drinking the waters here, which are said to be invaluable for stomach troubles, and this morning he said he believed he would be all right by the time the team is ready to leave the Springs.

To-day the regulars and Yannigans are booked to play an exhibition game at French Lick Springs, about three-quarters of a mile from here. One can walk the distance in fifteen minutes easily, but it takes just as long to go by trolley, as the dinky little line that connects the two resorts makes a snake-like curve on its travels. Tom Taggart of Indianapolis, who owns about everything in French Lick, has promised to have a special trolley car ready for the boys at 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. The game will be played on a diamond made out on the golf course. There are small trees in the outfield, but the Bostons are used to these, as they were plentiful on the grounds at Macon, where the boys trained many seasons.

Players All Fall in Love with Springs.

Pat Powers, president of the Eastern League, arranged the game for Mr. Taggart. All hands are more than pleased with the quarters here and strong arguments are being fired at President Taylor to have him arrange a stay of at least two weeks when the team trains next season. It will not take much pressure to make Mr. Taylor yield, for he is in love with the place, too. The question of weather is the only thing that stands in the way. Bad weather makes the best training camp in the world look like a dead one. With the exception of Stahl and Oberlin all the players are in good shape. Oberlin is suffering from stomach trouble.

Instead of finding cold weather, we have the temperature here nearly as high as we left it in Little Rock and Louisville. The players had a fine workout on the ball field, which is situated within a covered bicycle track, three laps to the mile. This track was built when cycle racing was on the boom, and would cost a fortune to train here. Now the track is used for a promenade and walks our boys practiced the giants of the hotel strolled out on the track and watched them.

The diamond was not ready for use, as the recent flood put it under water and the skin dirt surface was crushed. A gang of workmen shoveled off the crust and it was all ready for the boys when they went out for the morning's work.

The hotel is built in the shape of an immense circle, with a large open space covered by a glass dome in the centre. This open space is larger by far than the Cyclorama Building in Boston. There are shops within the walls of this open space.

Make Boys Victims of Famous Badger Hoax.

There is music at night and the boys are having the time of their lives. They are to leave here only four days. They wish the stay was to be three days. On Saturday they go to Indianapolis for a game and on Sunday open a series in Cincinnati.

Last night they pulled off the famous West Baden hoax called the "dog-badger fight." Freddy Parent was the victim, with Freddy O'Connell and Professor Green running him a close second. The colored waiters who have never seen the regular fight this game, it may be said that the colored employees of the hotel announced a fight between a dog and a badger. They sold tickets at twenty-five cents a head. About 200 guests of the hotel, including the entire Boston delegation, fell for it.

At the appointed hour the parlor was turned into a ring and the famous colored gentleman explained that the dog and badger would fight under Marquis of Queensberry rules, that is, to a finish. It was announced that Tom Corbett would act as referee and two timekeepers—one for the dog and one for the badger. Freddy Parent was prevailed upon to act as second to the badger and Fred Payne to hold the watch.

Just before the fight began some of the guests who had been let into the secret began betting furiously. "Twenty dollars on the dog," yelled one man. "Fifty on the badger," said another. The betting began to run strongly in favor of the badger, as the badger did not appear. The colored master of ceremonies said the badger sometimes wouldn't settle down for a minute or two. Then Freddy Parent climbed into the ring and the little fellow, amid tremendous excitement, gave a mighty heave and drew out from under a cupful of oyster shells. The players and guests laughed at Freddie for two hours by the watch.

JACK (TWIN) SULLIVAN. JACK PALMER.

Here are the two fighters, Jack "Twin" Sullivan and Jack Palmer, as they shaped up in their battle at Los Angeles last night. The Cambridge boy again demonstrated the superiority of America over England in the ring by making the Britisher throw up the sponge in ten rounds.

Palmer on His Knees but Sullivan Helps Him Up.

ROUND TWO—Twin led with left to stomach but fell short. Palmer came in with left; they clinched. Palmer drove his glove under Twin's chin, and shoved it back. Both reached stomach with rights. Palmer shot straight left to Twin's face and then got in a smacker to stomach. Both landed lefts and came to clinch. Referee Corbett's hand on Palmer's body. Sullivan's right hand went over Palmer's head and they straightened up. The Englishman got straight left to Twin's mouth. Sullivan caught Palmer on the side of head with a hook to the body. Palmer slipped to an knee and Sully helped him up. Twin sent the Englishman back with a left to face and followed it with right to jaw. Palmer missed. Twin landed left and right. They exchanged light body blows as round closed. Sullivan's round.

ROUND THREE—Sully easily blocked Palmer's left lead and tossed off a couple more as they came into a clinch. Palmer's leads missed and they went at it again. Twin crossing the Englishman with a hard right to jaw. In close quarters Sully reached Palmer with left to stomach. Palmer tried hard with his right to head, but was blocked. Sullivan shot left to face but the English man retaliated with clinging left to stomach. Sullivan reached face with left and then landed hard to wind. They clinched. Sullivan blocked Palmer's lead repeatedly, and the Englishman's smashes to head effectively. Palmer rushed and Sullivan stopped him cold with a right and left to the face. Sullivan made Palmer gasp with left to the face and left to the stomach. Twin sent right after his man, shooting rights and lefts to the stomach, and then shifting to the head. A stiff right to the jaw and a left to the pit of the stomach sent Palmer to the floor with a thump as the gong sounded.

Sullivan Has Palmer Going as Gong Sounds.

Palmer But a Child in Sullivan's Hands.

ROUND FIVE—Sully got a straight left to the face and proceeded to follow his man around the ring, pecking him with rights and lefts to face. Twin easily tossed off the Englishman's leads. Two telling lefts in the pit of the stomach made Palmer wince. A right cross to the jaw made Palmer back away. Sullivan followed him along the ring, shooting right to head and left to stomach. The Englishman was a child in the hands of the shifty Boston fighter and was not even making an interesting fight. Sullivan had no trouble reaching the head and body at will. Hard lefts to the stomach sent the Englishman into his own corner by making every effort to cover up and avoid punishment. Occasionally Palmer would break loose with right or left swings but not one in a dozen landed. Palmer had not yet gotten in a real effective blow.

Sullivan Blocked All the Englishman's Leads.

ROUND SIX—Palmer came up with a worried look on his face. Sullivan contented himself during the early part of this round with blocking Palmer's leads and sticking to occasionally a light blow. Palmer tried with light left to body and hit rather low. In close quarters Twin got over lefts to the stomach. Backing Palmer into his own corner, Sullivan shot over a hard right to the head and then repeated the dose with his left. Sullivan blocked Palmer every time he tried to lead, and when he rushed in met him with uppercuts to face and body. Palmer reached the jaw with left and Sullivan landed effectively with right cross and then a left.

Palmer Is Cautioned for Using His Elbow.

ROUND SEVEN—Sullivan came over to meet his man, apparently determined to settle things. Three lefts smacked into Palmer's face and then a right disturbed his nose. Palmer was trying with straight lefts but Sullivan beat him to it. Palmer missed and went to one knee. He remained down a second to rest. Getting up he swung hard left on Sullivan's neck and Referee Corbett was cautioned by referee for using his elbow. Palmer rushed Sullivan to the clinch. Sully had van cane in the Englishman delivered a wild right swing, but it missed. The Britisher got left to stomach and followed it with a right to the clinch. Both Sullivan tapped the nose with left and then Palmer landed with a couple of rights.

Palmer Knocked Down Three Times by "Twin."

ROUND EIGHT—Sullivan sent in three rights and lefts to Palmer's jaw face. Palmer got in right to chin and missed a left. Both blocked. Sullivan landed to the chin and Palmer returned it. Twin set himself and shot in right to jaw. They went into long clinch and Sullivan forced his man to the ropes. Sullivan tossed off right to the head and shot a straight left to the nose. Palmer kept wading in, trying to land, but could do little damage. They backed about the ring without a blow being landed. Then Sullivan met his man in the middle and with a terrific left put to the stomach. Palmer went down and took the count of nine. Palmer was down again for the count of nine. A right to the back of the head as Palmer rose sent him to the floor once more, and he was on all fours when the gong sounded.

Hopeless Fight, Gong Saves Palmer Again.

ROUND NINE—The rest did Palmer handsome little good and he was in a helpless condition when he came up. He tried to stall and Sullivan whipped three blows to the kidneys. Palmer went to the floor after missing a swing and took the count of 8. Sullivan put left to stomach and they clinched. Two more lefts to stomach made Palmer grunt. Sullivan sent a series of lefts into Palmer's face and the Englishman held on in a clinch. Palmer was making a game effort, but it was a hopeless struggle for him. The gong saved him again.

Towel Tossed in as Palmer Is on Floor.

ROUND TEN—The Englishman could hardly get out of his chair when the gong sounded, and Sullivan came over to meet him. Twin took his time and, in close quarters, tapped a few to the back of Palmer's neck. A left caught Palmer full in the face as he backed away. Sullivan shot right and left to the head and a right to the kidneys. Palmer was so weak he wobbled after each exchange. Sullivan hit him in the back of the head and a very light left sent the Englishman staggering across the ring. Twin led and the stumbling Palmer tried to clinch and hold on. As they came out of a clinch Sullivan put a right over to the jaw and as Palmer went to the floor a towel was tossed into the ring.

AUTOISTS WILL NOT FIGHT THE REGISTRATION BILL

BY J. C. KERRISON.

It is understood on what is considered most excellent authority that the Massachusetts State Automobile Association will not fight the proposed bill calling for an annual registration of motor vehicles. The officers of this association are willing that in a measure motor vehicles are injurious to the roads, as now constructed, and therefore will favorv a nominal registration fee, and advocate the construction of roads in the future of such material and workmanship as will best withstand the wear and tear given by motor vehicles and other modern locomotives.

By this it is not to be understood that the association favors a mileage rate for registration, which has been suggested, but which would be unjust in its individuality, will collectively make a fair average and will be of value to the highway commissioners in their annual report to the legislature.

The hearing to-morrow will unquestionably bring forth a large attendance, and the position which will be taken in the matter by the State association will be that of a liberal, enlightened and fair legislators who have gotten into the habit of every session of throwing monkey wrenches which might be introduced by other than motor bills should receive the same kind and hard treatment from it, now was notice.

L. H. Perkins of New York, the man who drove the White car from New York to Boston during the snow week, rather takes exception to the contentions made by Kelsey in the Matheson car, who later the same week made a magnificent run between those cities. Mr. Perkins is now in charge of the Matheson car, Kelsey driver, and offers to wager $500 that he, with the same White car he used on the first trip, can beat Kelsey in a run in this city, Kelsey to drive the Matheson car. The race to be driven in his New York-Boston trip. Kelsey has accepted the challenge, it is saying, and do much to settle all claims and contentions as to the best time recorded road car.

President Lewis R. Sipame of the Bay State Automobile Association is now busily having no end of experiences with the fine new Lozier touring car. Mrs. Sipame drove the car into a pond to save turning up and Sipame excitedly ordered her out. Not much can be termed of seeing his wife nearly drowned, and Sipame will have three cylinders to smoke. His next car and garage will be of asbestos, he says.

PAPKE DREW WITH RHODES

SCHRECK PUTS TREMBLE AWAY

By Boston American Leased Wire.

DAVENPORT, Ia., March 27.—Billy Papke, the bruiser of Spring Valley, and Billy Rhodes of Rossford fought fifteen fast rounds before the Davenport Athletic Club last night, and the referee called it a draw. Papke was the aggressor all the way, but Rhodes was very lucid, slipping Papke and the best of it.

THOMPSON AND HYLAND DRAW

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27. Dick Hyland and Cyclone Thompson fought 20 lively rounds to a draw here.

FIGHT TO-NIGHT AT ROCKLAND

There will be plenty of action in the bout to-night at Rockland, Me., to suit the fans when Jerry Driscoll Walcott of Boston fights Tom Sawyer in his home burg.

This bout should need anything that the little Maine town has seen for some time. Walcott is in prime shape, while Sawyer was never better in his life, and a whirlwind mill is assured.

NO BOUTS AT CHELSEA

Acting on the advice of its attorney the Commissioners A. C. of Chelsea held no boxing meeting last night. There was a big crowd of sports from this and other cities at the clubhouse, and they were greatly disappointed.

REGULARS WON OVER YANNIGANS

Special to the Boston American.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., March 27. In a whirlwind finish at Fair grounds park yesterday the Yannigans made a desperate attempt to tie up the game and came very near succeeding. Result, Regulars 9, Yannigans 8. The charley horse in President Dovey's right leg was all that prevented a tie.

Ritchey on second base did splendid work yesterday. Only one error was recorded against him. Bontele made a phenomenal catch while in centre field, catching one deep in the field by jumping and hauling it down with one hand. Birdwell at shortstop showed up good. He took a desperate chance at a hot one off the end of Lindsman and won. Manager Tenney performed the feat of making a home run on a bunt. A pair of wild throws assisted him, however, Bates and Brush both got two clean home runs. Sam Brown was out of the game on account of a spoiled little finger on his right hand. Flaherty played for the first time in several days.

STAR SKATERS MEET IN PACE RACE TO-NIGHT

Faster than any race ever put on the glimmering surface will be the bike paced event at the Park Square rink to-night, when Clarence Hamilton, the swiftest thing on skates in this section of the country, and Fred White, who thinks that he can take Hamilton's measure, start in an event of ten miles with star bike rid ers to draw them out to their limit of speed.

High McLean and Will Stinson, the giants in the bike game, will do the pacing, and it will be a battle between them to beat each other, as there exists a lot of rivalry among the professional pace riders.

White is the conqueror of Champion Hamilton for beating him in the six day race and will make an extended effort to beat the youngster who is taking all his laurels.

The races should furnish some novel sport, as it is the first time that such a contest has been waged anywhere, and it will be a shading race from start to finish.

The skaters will toss for pacemaker, and it will be up to Stinson and McLean to show his ability to carry their men to the finish.

TUFTS 1ST, 5; TUFTS 2D, 4.

Tufts first team defeated the second team 5 to 4 in a five inning game on the old campus yesterday afternoon. Atwood, who pitched for the second team, held the first team down to six hits. A hit he made two hits.

Smashing the Piano Trust

We Licked the Combination in 22 Cities Lately

Our agents swooped down upon 22 New England cities, armed with Uncle Sam's best sensational weapons, and started in to smash every Trust piano that they could lay their hands on. The poor small Piano Trust Dealers and agents who have been tied up to the combination, and who have been having back to sell in a hail front market, got frightened at the strength we have shown in our fight with the Trust, and surrendered to us at once that we could have all the Trust pianos we wanted. We have been selling them by the dozen right back to the dear souls at ridiculous prices. Just read the smashing way we gave the Piano Trust the 243 new Trust Pianos in the following cities:

PORTLAND, ME.	7 Pianos
BANGOR, ME.	4 Pianos
AUGUSTA, ME.	2 Pianos
MANCHESTER, N. H.	25 Pianos
CONCORD, N. H.	3 Pianos
NASHUA, N. H.	6 Pianos
KEENE, N. H.	2 Pianos
BURLINGTON, VT.	6 Pianos
MONTPELIER, VT.	2 Pianos
LOWELL, MASS.	31 Pianos
LYNN, MASS.	11 Pianos
FALL RIVER, MASS.	7 Pianos
LAWRENCE, MASS.	9 Pianos
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.	14 Pianos
WORCESTER, MASS.	24 Pianos
HARTFORD, CONN.	23 Pianos
NEW HAVEN, CONN.	21 Pianos
NEW LONDON, CONN.	3 Pianos
BRIDGEPORT, CONN.	9 Pianos
PROVIDENCE, R. I.	23 Pianos
PAWTUCKET, R. I.	7 Pianos

Do you know what we are going to do? We are going to put The Roxbury Storage Salesrooms' name up on every one of them and scatter them throughout our Piano Prices. We will scatter them as seeds among the people that they may produce a crop of business for us next season. We have got the Trust by the throat and we are going to choke it to death. We have got more for their pianos than the mean law allows. Buy your piano from us; no matter what make you want we have it. Help us to defeat the Trust and we will make it worth your while. Call if you can and call early.

Can Chicago Think for Herself?

Or Must She Depend Upon the Wisdom of New York City's Traction Trust? That Is the Question in the Pending Election

Chicago faces a mayoralty election.

That election will tell all the people of the State where Chicago, in her own estimation, stands in regard to self-government.

The two candidates for office are Dunne, the Democrat, and Busse, the Republican, both representing opposite sides of this question.

Mayor Dunne says to his fellow-citizens, truthfully, this:

Working together, the citizens of Chicago and the Mayor whom they elected as a protest against corporation rule have accomplished results.

We have reduced the price of gas.

We have reduced the price of electric light.

We have reduced the charges for water.

We have reduced the price of the telephone system.

WE HAVE EXTENDED AND IMPROVED THE POLICE FORCE AND DIMINISHED CRIME.

We can do in the next few years far more than this, IF WE WILL HAVE CONFIDENCE IN OURSELVES AND REFUSE TO ADMIT THAT WE NEED CORPORATIONS OR TRACTION TRUST MAGNATES FROM NEW YORK CITY TO TEACH US AND GUIDE US.

On the other hand, the Republican candidate, Mr. Busse, says to the people of Chicago:

Chicago CANNOT govern herself. The citizens are incapable of solving their own problems.

They thought a short time ago that they wanted city control of city railroads, BUT THEY DON'T KNOW WHAT THEY WANT, and they are incapable of organizing, anyhow.

Let us give up the effort to run Chicago for the Chicago people, and resume the old plan OF HAVING CHICAGO RUN FOR AND BY NON-RESIDENT FRANCHISE OWNERS.

Let us take back the Belmonts, the Ryans and the Morgans to our bosom and say to them: "We tried it, but it was too much for us. You must run our city and do with us as you think best."

The answer that Chicago will give at this election is important not only to the great city of Chicago but to all communities in the United States.

It is the desire of the people of this country to control the public service undertakings absolutely essential to the comfort of the citizens.

It is the hope of the trust owners—the Gas Trust, Traction TRUST and others—THAT THE PEOPLE WILL BE EASILY DISCOURAGED AND PERSUADED TO RETURN TO THE OLD WAY.

Everywhere throughout the country, as in Chicago, all possible obstacles will be thrown in the way of public control and honest service.

The banks will keep their money back, the big corporations will hire those that can be hired, and buy men right and left, as they have bought the Chicago City Council.

In every human conflict the hope of the man eager to win is that his adversary will grow disheartened.

Each race is won AT THE END OF THE RACE, not at the beginning. The public service trusts hopes that Chicago will prove herself incapable of HOLDING OUT, incapable of persisting in a courageous resolution. They hope that she will say:

"I thought I could run myself, I thought I could manage the city's transportation, but I cannot, I give it up. I find it requires the brain of an August Belmont or the pocketbook of a Thomas F. Ryan to teach the people of Chicago how to care for themselves."

This newspaper cannot believe that the trust managers will be justified in their hopes as to Chicago's weakness and lack of determination.

A city that could not be discouraged by the greatest possible calamity—total destruction by fire—will not weakly throw itself into the arms of Wall street capitalists and confess, "We cannot do without you."

It would be a decision unworthy of Chicago, a shameful confession to make to the entire country that looks to Chicago for strong, courageous citizenship.

There are TWO kinds of men in this world:

The kind of man that undertakes a thing, AND DOES IT.

And the kind of man that undertakes a thing, gets discouraged and QUITS.

We do not believe that the men of Chicago belong to the second class.

Adams Was "Instructed"; Why Shouldn't Turtle Be?

(Mr. Turtle Is a Member of the Present Legislature Who Thinks It Beneath His Dignity to Receive Instructions from the People.)

By Robert Treat Paine, Jr.

THE Public Opinion bill has been reported by the Election Laws Committee.

No measure before the Legislature is more in harmony with the Constitution and with the traditions of the State.

The Bill of Rights of our Constitution in Article 19 expressly proclaims that the people have the right to "instruct their representatives."

For years before the Constitution was adopted in 1780 the people instructed their representatives.

The people of Boston, for instance, instructed their representatives in the years 1764-65-66-67-68-69-70-72-74.

John Adams, afterward the signer of the Declaration of Independence and President of the United States, at the town meeting in 1764 read the instructions to the representatives who had just been elected—using these notable words:

> "Reserving to ourselves the constitutional right of expressing our minds and giving you such instructions upon important subjects as at any time we may judge proper."

Who were these representatives thus instructed?

They were James Otis, Samuel Adams, John Hancock and Thomas Cushing, some of the greatest leaders in the pre-revolutionary struggle.

The Public Opinion bill does not provide for "instructions." Cautiously and conservatively it merely permits the people as a whole to express their deliberate wish on subjects of great importance to them, but simply as a suggestion for wise action by their representatives.

Our forefathers willingly received "instructions" from the voters. Do our present representatives refuse to permit even the "expression" of public opinion?

The debate and the roll-call in the House this week may well serve as a landmark in the political career of many a representative.

It will show, for instance, as to Republicans, who stand with Lincoln, and like him believe in the rights of the people. Opponents of the measure should remember his warning that "you cannot fool all the people all the time."

For Those Who Skip

(A novel in which the last chapter is printed first, the first last, and most of the others omitted.)

By Wex Jones

CHAPTER XXX.

IT was a magnificent wedding. Cissie wore white thingamajig trimmed with whatyoucallit and a train of somethingorother, with thingumbob applique. As they left the church Chester said: "Thithie, I've thomething to tell you. I lotht all my money in the Wall Thtreet panic. Aren't you glad? I can be a valet now." But Cissie had fainted.

CHAPTER XV.

"I've always wanted to marry a valet," said Cissie, as she leaned her head on Chester's bosom. "Will it make any difference if I'm not one?" asked Chester. "Oh!" cried Cissie; "are you only a dishwasher or something?" "I'm Cheathter Dingbatte." "Well, I s'pose I'll have to take you anyway; you've won my foolish little heart."

CHAPTER XIV.

Chester was eating fudge. Cissie had made it. "Thithie," said Chester —"I may call you Thithie?—would you like to make fudge for me forever?" "Oh, Chester!" exclaimed Cissie, "you're hooked—I mean I'm so surprised." "You thmile on my thuit, then?" said Chester.

CHAPTER III.

Quite by accident Cissie met Chester at her gate. Quite by accident her skirt caught in the hinge, and Chester could do nothing but help release it. He thought Cissie such a nice girl, and so shy. "Do you know who I am?" he asked her. "Sure," said Cissie; "you're Mr. Dingbatte's valet. She likes me for myself alone," said Chester.

CHAPTER II.

Cissie Oodle was a peach in the garden of love. She was a girl with a tender heart; so tender that a million dollars impressed her wonderfully, and eight million—

CHAPTER I.

Chester Dingbatte had eight million dollars and a lisp. Every girl he met was trying to marry him. Not for his money, but for part of it.

So Live That When Death Comes It Will Find You Ready; Don't Stand in Constant Fear of It

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

MANY seers and prophets of evil are making nervous people miserable by their foresight of terrible calamities. Statisticians are adding to the worry by enumerating the extraordinary number of earthquakes, fires and hurricanes which have visited the earth during the last year.

But no one of these statisticians seems to see the weak link in his chain of evidence, that last year was the worst year in the world's history.

Without doubt there have been many more earthquakes, tidal waves and hurricanes in other years, but they have occurred in uninhabited portions of the globe and were not recorded. One who travels over the earth's surface finds continual evidences of earthquakes and eruptions of volcanoes of which there is no data conserved by history.

Unrecorded Disasters

THE instrument which records earthquake shocks is of comparatively modern invention. In Asia, Africa, Egypt, the arctic regions and in the temperate zones there are vast tracts of uninhabitable lands and forests. Tremendous shocks and convulsions of nature have taken place in these localities, and had there been human life, especially congested human life, in these regions, these convulsions would have become calamities. Had there been no city on the sites of San Francisco and Kingston the earthquakes would have been mere incidents, passing without comment, as have innumerable others.

Thousands of such shocks have occurred all over the earth's surface for millions of years, and still human beings multiply. The oldest inhabitant of the earth can no doubt remember when in his youth the near dissolution of the world was predicted by seers and prophets.

And yet the world goes on.

It will continue to go on for many more millions of years.

It requires aeons of time for a planet to decay.

In its turn ours will perish, and its material will be worked over by the Great Chemist into new worlds.

There is little sense in lying awake nights, of becoming despondent through days over the anticipated end of the earth.

There is no logic or reason in spoiling to-day by fear of to-morrow.

Death—the transition of the soul from the body—is inevitable.

Why Fear Death?

AND it is as desirable as inevitable. To live on forever in this same body would be the most monotonous and dreary of fates. Variety makes life interesting. New scenes, new experiences, new clothes, new amusements, new pursuits, new ideas—these are what render life agreeable.

So a new body—a finer body—in a new sphere, in a new state of existence, is to be desired rather than dreaded. Whether the end of this phase comes through sickness, old age, an automobile, a railroad, a bicycle or earthquake, a tidal wave or a hurricane, it is inevitable.

The one thing to do is to realize that it is only the end of one phase, and to live in such a mental condition that the transition will be a happy one, and the opportunities for usefulness enlarged. This is best achieved by keeping the mind in a state of fear and nervous terror over a possible calamity.

What is to be will be.

Go about your business and perform your duty and enjoy your recreation as if no such thing as an earthquake had ever been.

No Cause for Anxiety

REALIZE that the transition called death awaits you somewhere down the road, and remember that you can take nothing with you, save the character you build day by day, but do not waste one hour in anxiety about the cause, day or manner of your exit.

Leave it all with God.

It really does not matter very much if you stop and consider the subject. Had there been no eruption of Vesuvius in 79 B. C., not one of those people who suffered death then would be living on earth now.

You will not be living one hundred years hence if there are no earthquakes, no tidal waves, no conflagrations of nature.

Why, then, fret yourself into a state of nervous prostration over the fear of some possible catastrophe?

Keep busy moulding your own character into beautiful form, and let God twist the earth as He will.

Character alone survives and endures through all the multitudinous changes of nature. Make the best of yourself, your life and your opportunities, and believe whatever comes will be for ultimate good.

Lesson of Earthquake

PERHAPS future generations will learn the lesson the earthquake is trying to teach (that perhaps it is trying to teach) and avoid building crowded cities. Perhaps they will learn how necessary it is to reclaim the earth and scatter themselves over larger spaces.

But even if they do all must eventually pass from earth.

More people died of accidents, of travel by automobile, horses, railroads, boats last year than died in earthquakes. Yet let us not be afraid to travel or to stay at home in consequence.

Let us not be of those "Who all their lives, through fear of death, are subject to bondage."

Live, work, aspire, rejoice and when death comes, be ready.

But do not rush forth every hour on the wings of fear to meet it.
